HISTORICAL DATA

Cranston settlement was begun by a group known as the Pawtuxet purchasers in 1640. It was a separate entity, but remained a political part of Providence. On June 14, 1754, it became a town, named after Samuel Cranston, governor of Rhode Island from March 1698 until his death in 1727. The greatest development in the town was in portions that were eventually annexed to Providence: June 10, 1868, South Providence and Elmwood sections; March 28, 1873, additional parts of Elmwood and Washington Park incorporated into the Roger Williams Park area. In 1910, a proposition to annex Edgewood caused such a bitter controversy that the town adopted a plan for a city government to end further annexations by Providence. The town was incorporated as a city on March 10, 1910. The first election under the charter was held April 19, 1910 and the new city government was organized May 2, 1910. Land area — 28.6 square miles.

A home rule charter was adopted in 1962.

Historic Note

Roger Williams was the first white settler of what is now East Providence, settling at the mouth of the Ten Mile River. The Indians called the place Seekonk, derived from two Algonquin words—"seaki" (meaning black) and "honk" (meaning goose).

A boundary dispute between Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which dates from Roger Williams' eviction, was carried on intermittently until it was settled by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1861. In the settlement, the westerly part of Seekonk was annexed to Rhode Island and incorporated as a town March 1, 1862. The name East Providence was conferred upon it by Gov. William Sprague by request of the citizens' caucus. The first town meeting was held March 1, 1862, in the Old Town Hall on Pawtucket Avenue. In 1888, a new Town Hall was erected on Taunton Avenue in the Watchemoket section. Its area is 13.85 square miles.

East Providence became a city on Dec. 1, 1958, with a Council-Manager form of government.

Historical Data

Newport, "America's First Resort," was founded in 1639, and was incorporated as a city in 1784, and rechartered in 1853. Under the charter of 1853, on June 7, Robert B. Cranston was chosen mayor. Immediately after organization of the new city government on June 9, he resigned. Alderman J. Hunter was elected presiding officer of the board and ex-officio mayor pro tem Oct. 6, 1853, at a special election. George H. Calvert was elected mayor.

Newport has long been one of the chief naval ports on the East Coast. It is the home of the Naval Base, Naval War College, Naval Education and Training Center, Naval Justice School, Naval Underwater Systems Center, Surface Warfare Officers School Command. (See also page 114)

The city has an area of 7.3 square miles. Famous as a resort, Newport began accommodating summer "colonists" from southern states even before the Revolution. Its Gilded Age came in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Many of its mansion-sized "cottages" are still in full use, but others have been converted to tourist showplaces or taken over by schools and colleges.

President John F. Kennedy was married in Newport to the former Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, and also vacationed there during his presidency.

A new city charter drawn up under provisions of the Home Rule Amendment to the State Constitution, and providing for a city manager and nonpartisan, unicameral council, was approved by the voters at the general election of Nov. 4, 1952. Enactment on Nov 1, 1953 of the new charter was a long-awaited victory for those Newporters who had been working for a council-manager form of government since 1922.

Despite their efforts and approval of a new charter by Newport voters, bills in the state legislature for new charters were defeated many times during those 30 years prior to enactment of the Home Rule Amendment.

Historical Data

Pawtucket, whose name is of Indian origin, was known by that name from the earliest days of the colony. The present city was formed by combining original settlements on both sides of the Blackstone River. The portion on the easterly side which separated from Seekonk in 1828 and incorporated as a town in Massachusetts, was transferred to Rhode Island in the state boundary settlement on March 1, 1862. The portion on the westerly side was a part of North Providence until it was annexed to Pawtucket on May 1, 1874. Pawtucket was incorporated as a city March 27, 1885 and the city government organized on Jan. 4, 1886.

The first settler was Joseph Jenks Jr., who established a forge at the falls of the Blackstone River in 1671. Samuel Slater in 1790, built the Arkwright models for cotton machinery that established the industry in the United States. His factory, erected in 1793, was the first successful cotton mill in America operated by water power. The Old Slater Mill has been restored and now is a museum.

Pawtucket has an area of 8.8 square miles. There are 208 miles of streets, of which 182 miles are improved. Park and playground areas total 423 acres.

The population is 71,204.

A new city charter, providing for a strong mayor and unicameral council form of government, was approved by the voters at the general election of Nov. 4, 1952. It became fully effective Feb. 1, 1954.

PROVIDENCE CITY HALL

The Providence City Hall, built of Westerly and New Hampshire granite, four stories and basement, with mansard roof and thoroughly fireproof, is located upon the plot of land bounded by Fulton, Eddy, Washington and Dorrance Streets, the lot measuring 171 by 188 feet and having an area slightly over 32,000 square feet.

The cornerstone was laid June 24, 1875 and the building was dedicated Nov. 14, 1878. The cost of the structure was $1,040,000.

In 1914, extensive alterations to it were begun. Originally the structure was but three stories. Another story was added, extensive changes made in the roof, and an entire refitting of all the offices was carried out. The cost of the improvements was about $150,000.

In addition to the chamber of the City Council, the following municipal offices and departments are located in City Hall: Probate Court; Recorder of Deeds; Department of Public Property; City Clerk; Mayor; City Treasurer; City Controller; Board of Canvassers; City Collector; City Assessor; Finance Director; Tax Assessment Board of Review; Registrar of Vital Statistics; Bureau of Licenses.

The building is opened at 8:30 a.m. and closed at 4:30 p.m. on all weekdays, except Saturdays when it is closed. From the first Monday in July until Labor Day it closes at 4 p.m. daily. Members of the city government and all persons having special business may enter at other times on application at the Washington Street door. Persons attending open sessions of committees, public hearings, etc., held after the hours of closing the building will be admitted at the Washington Street door.

The Probate Court sits every Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m., except in July and August, when it is in session only on the second and fourth Tuesday and Wednesday.

WATER SUPPLY

Providence obtains its water supply from the Scituate Reservoir and five tributary reservoirs, all located on the north branch of the Pawtuxet River. The watershed covers 92.8 square miles and represents about 9 per cent of the total land area of the state. The area actually owned by Providence is 23.93 square miles; this is nearly 5 square miles greater than the area of the city itself.

The six reservoirs have a combined total capacity of 41.3 billion gallons and a total water surface area of 4,557 acres. Over 10,500 acres of intensively managed forestland are marginal to the reservoir system and provide protection to a water resource known for its high quality. For the year ended June 30, 1988, average daily consumption was 73.1 million gallons.

The reservo[illegible]ir individual capacities and water surfaces [illegible]cituate, 37 billion gallons, 3,390 acres; Mos[illegible]t, 1.8 billion gallons, 282 acres; Regulating, [illegible] million gallons, 242 acres; Ponaganset, 7.4 million gallons, 229 acres; Barden, 8.5 million gallons, 240 acres; and Westconnaug, 4.5 million gallons, 174 acres.

The main reservoir is formed by a dam across the Pawtuxet River at the former village of Kent. Water storage in the reservoir began on Nov. 10, 1925. The dam is about 3,200 feet long, principally of earth, with a minimum height of 100 feet above the valley and 180 feet above bedrock. An aqueduct from the dam connects with a nearby filter plant which was placed in operation on Sept. 30, 1926. Here the water is treated and discharged into two aqueducts; one is the original 90-inch, with a capacity of 100,000,000 gallons daily. It is 7.30 miles long, including 3.34 miles of tunnel, 1.77 miles of masonry conduit in open cut and terminates at the siphon chamber near Phenix Ave. From the siphon chamber, it splits into two conduits. The northerly is a 60" prestressed concrete cylinder pipe and the southerly is a 66" pumping station. The 60" steel terminates at 48" steel conduit at Reservoir Ave. These two conduits connect the with the distribution system. The second is a 9.5 mile, 78-inch and 102-inch supplemental tunnel and aqueduct which terminates at Budlong Road, Cranston. Flow from the source of supply to the distribution system is entirely by gravity; at the present time, the mode of distribution is 75 per cent by gravity and 25 per cent by pumping.

In order to utilize the full potential of the source of supply, several major construction projects were completed between 1968 and 1970, consisting of a $1,150,000 Raw Water Booster Pumping Station at the base of Gainer Dam, the supplemental tunnel and aqueduct, and additions and improvements at the water purification works; the cost of the latter two projects amounted to $16,650,000. The pumping station houses units with a total capacity of 160,000,000 gallons daily and a 2,300 horsepower emergency diesel driven generator. The 78-inch section of aqueduct will handle 50,000,000 gallons per day, while the 102-inch diameter portion has a capacity of 100,000,000 gallons daily. Total transmission capacity is 200 million gallons per day, sufficient to meet the 144,000,000 gallons maximum day output of the plant and 56,000,000 gallons per day from a future additional source of supply (Big River Reservoir).

Under a resolution initiated in the City Council and approved Jan. 7, 1913, the preliminary investigation was started for the reservoir project, and the Water Supply Board was created and its powers defined by Chapter 1278, Public Laws, 1915. This board organized and began its work April 26, 1915. The reservoir construction was carried on under the direction of Frank E. Winsor as Chief Engineer of the board, who resigned Sept. 30, 1926, the same day on which the main reservoir was placed in commission.

The reservoir construction was completed and the facility turned over to the Department of Public Works for operation on June 10, 1929. The Department of Public Works continued the operation of the supply until Feb. 6, 1941 when a Water Supply Board established under the new City Charter was organized.

On Oct. 15, 1949, the dam on the main reservoir was dedicated to the memory of the late Mayor Joseph H. Gainer under whose administration the dam was built and the present water supply system created.

Fluoridation of the water began Aug. 13, 1952 after the move had been approved by public and private health, dental and medical groups, and by cities and towns which use water supplied by Providence.

On Oct. 20, 1954, the administration and operations building at 552 Academy Ave. was officially opened. This building, housing all departments of the Water Supply Board, was completed at a cost of $349,115.

On Aug. 22, 1962, the additions, alterations and improvements at the water purification works in Scituate were officially dedicated. The cost of these improvements was about $2,070,000.

On Oct. 17, 1962, the 40,030,000 gallon Aqueduct Distribution Reservoir was placed in operation. This reservoir, completed at a cost of $1,753,000 increased the total distribution storage to 90,550,000 gallons.

A resolution sponsored by Mayor Joseph A. Doorley Jr., and enacted by the city council, rededicated the treatment complex as the Philip J. Holton Water Purification Works. This ceremony honoring the retired, long-time chief engineer was held May 23, 1969 at the plant in Scituate.

ANNEXATION TO PROVIDENCE

Eight times since its incorporation as a city, Providence has annexed portions of adjoining towns. The first annexation occurred on June 10, 1868, when a section of Cranston was taken. This is divided between the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Wards and includes the area south of a line beginning at Terrace Avenue and Cumerford Street and extending easterly to the Providence Harbor line, the area now known as Elmwood and South Providence.

On March 28, 1873, a part of North Providence, Swan Point Cemetery and North Burial Ground was taken into the city. On March 25, 1873, a second section of Cranston was annexed and on May 1, 1874, a second section of North Providence was taken into the city. May 6, 1887, the city obtained a third section of Cranston, that section taking in Cunliff's Pond which was added to Roger Williams Park. July 1, 1892, a fourth annexation from Cranston, of three-quarters of a mile, was taken and added to the park.

On June 1, 1898, the town of Johnston gave up a large section. This area lies beyond Olneyville Square, toward Thornton, at that time known as West Providence. On April 16, 1919, the city annexed a portion of Neutaconkanut Park from the town of Johnston.

PROVIDENCE CEMETERIES

Grace Church Cemetery, Elmwood Avenue and Broad Street; Hebrew Cemetery, 375 Reservoir Ave.; Locust Grove Cemetery, 446 Elmwood Ave.; North Burial Ground, Branch Avenue and North Main Street; St. Patrick's Cemetery, Douglas Avenue and Blackstone Boulevard.

SEVEN HILLS OF PROVIDENCE

Providence is said to have been built on seven hills. They are Prospect or College Hill, Constitution Hill, Tockwotten Hill at Fox Point, Smith Hill, Federal Hill, Christian Hill at Hoyle Square, junction of Cranston and Westminster Street, and Weybosset Hill at lower end of Weybosset Street. Weybosset Hill was leveled in the early 1880's to construct the Turks Head Building.

HIGHEST POINTS

The three highest points in Providence above sea level are: Neutaconkanut Hill, 252.99 ft., southeast curb intersection of Hope Street and Doyle Avenue, 199.87 ft.; west curb on Smith Street at city line, 187.81 ft.

LATITUDE-LONGITUDE

Ladd Observatory, 214 Doyle Avenue is in latitude 41 degrees 50'16" and longitude 71 degrees 24'0".

GEOGRAPHICAL CENTER

The geographical center of Providence was once at the corner of Atwells Avenue and Bourne Street, now no longer there since the building of Route 95. According to the engineering firm, C.A. Maguire & Associates, which designed the highway, this intersection would now be the curb of the northbound lane of Route 95 below the Atwells Avenue overpass.

PORT OF PROVIDENCE

The Port of Providence, third largest in New England in tonnage handled after Portland and Boston, is a deep-water port connected with the Atlantic Ocean 27 miles to the south by a ship channel with a minimum depth of 40 feet at mean low water through the Providence River, Narragansett Bay and Block Island Sound. In use almost since Providence was founded in 1636, the port today has 25 wharves and docks for accommodating medium and deep-draft vessels, and about 10½ miles of commercial waterfront almost evenly divided between Providence and East Providence.

The port has no scheduled passenger service, except for summer excursion vessels operated between Providence, Newport and Block Island since 1934 by Interstate Navigation Co.

The port has two towing firms and two stevedore firms employing more than 200 casual and full-time longshoremen. Fire protection for ships and shore facilities is by the Providence and East Providence fire departments, equipped with motorboats. Pilotages are furnished by a state pilot association, operating chiefly from Newport.

Dredging supervised by the Army Corp of Engineers to deepen the 17-mile channel to the port from 35 to 40 feet at low tide to handle deep-draft tankers was completed in 1971 at a cost of about $18 million, except for rock outcrops remaining at Rumstick Reach, which were removed in 1975.

Petrolane Inc. in November, 1972, took its first delivery of liquefied propane gas at its new 400,000 barrel terminal constructed earlier in the year. Also, Providence Gas Co. and Algonquin Gas Transmission Co. completed construction of a 600,000 barrel storage tank for liquefied natural gas in 1973.

The post of director of the port is held by John D'Antuano.

Municipal Wharf

The Municipal Wharf, occupying city land at Fields Point on the west bank of the Providence River, has been owned and operated by the city since 1916 and is the port's largest facility for handling dry cargo as well as petroleum products, on ocean going vessels.

The wharf can accommodate six Liberty type vessels and has about 50 acres of open, paved storage space. The granite block quay, originally 3,000 feet long, was extended to 4,300 feet between 1938 and 1941 and to its present length of 4,750 feet in 1961-62 under a $2 million bond issue approved in 1954. The ship berths have a depth of 30 feet at the north end 35 feet at the south end at mean low water.

At the general election in 1972, city voters approved a $6.5 million bond issue to extend the seawall, add two 600-foot deep water berths and build a new transit shed. Voters also approved a $1.5 million bond issue for new fender piles and butts for the pier facing and repair work on existing transit sheds. In 1974, a $2 million bond issue was passed for further improvements.

Facilities include a small, one-story concrete building, built with federal aid in 1936, and three brick and steel transit sheds. Also 7½ miles of tracks connect the port with the Conrail System, and two city highways lead to U. S. Route 1A or Allens Avenue, and thence to Interstate 95.

Repairs on two transit sheds and the former Port Administration Building were accomplished in 1976. Also that year, plans to extend the seawall and construct two new berths were scrapped, because environmental considerations had ruled out offshore dumping of polluted sludge that would be dredged from the area. Instead, three existing berths have been dredged to a depth of 40 feet and the smaller amount of sludge was spread over city-owned land adjacent to the wharf. A new freight terminal which includes limited passenger ship facilities and houses administrative offices opened in 1981.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1987, gross revenue totaled $2.06 million, down slightly from the previous year's record high. Revenue from auto imports was down 50 percent from the previous year because the port shared the one half of the car business with the state port at Davisville.

THE DEXTER DONATION

The town of Providence in 1824 was bequeathed more than 2,275,000 square feet of land in various parts of the city by Ebenezer Knight Dexter. The largest tract at Hope and Angell Streets and Lloyd and Arlington Avenues contained 1,692,173 square feet and was given for use as a poor farm.

After a special investigating committee condemned the farm as obsolete as a home for the aged poor, the city council in 1947 instituted court action seeking permission to sell the property and use the proceeds in a manner as close as possible to the intent of the donor. As a result, the farm property was sold Sept. 26, 1957 to Brown University on a high bid of $1,000,777.

Another tract in the donation is the Dexter Training Grounds which comprises 420,528 square feet at Dexter and Parade Streets and Hollywood Road, and the State Armory. According to a provision in the Dexter will, the grounds must be kept for the training of militia and no permanent buildings may be erected there. Other sundry properties in the donation, some of them leased to private tenants, bring the total land currently in the donation to 584,414 square feet.

PARKS

India Point Park — About 12 acres along the shoreline of India Point running westward from the Seekonk River, south of Route 195. Dedicated and opened in 1974, the park has an outdoor concert area, a dock, a playing field, walkways and benches overlooking the northern reaches of Narragansett Bay. A pedestrian bridge over Route 195 has been constructed to link the park with George M. Cohan Boulevard just behind the Fox Point School.

Purchase of the park land became possible after a donation of $150,000 to the city by Mrs. Henry D. Sharpe in January, 1970. The city allocated another $150,000 to the project, and applied for federal funds to match the total. A private fund drive also was conducted, and donations were received from state Green Acres funds and the Rockefeller Foundation. About one million dollars was raised to buy the land from two railroad companies and construct the park.

Albert Veri, a landscape architect, designed the park. The Campanella Corp. was the construction contractor.

Roger Williams National Memorial — Roger Williams National Memorial was authorized by Congress in 1965. The land was purchased by the National Park Service in December, 1974. The park covers 4½ acres, mostly open, in downtown Providence. Exhibits and a brief slide show introduce the major contributions of Roger Williams.

Presently there is a visitors center, located at 282 North Main St., at the site of the Roger Williams Spring. The center was constructed in a renovated 18th century building. The center is staffed and provides brochures and other information about the memorial.

Hahn Memorial on the national memorial grounds marks the site of the "spring of fresh water" once used by the Williams family, whose house stood across North Main Street, then called Towne Street, opposite the spring. Almost the entire village of Providence, including Williams' homestead, was destroyed during "King Philip's War" in 1676. Since then, any remaining vestige of the village of Providence as Roger Williams knew it, was obliterated by the 300-years growth of the city of Providence.

A national memorial, unlike a national park or monument is not established to preserve a natural resource, but to commemorate an individual or an ideal. The Rogers Williams Memorial is intended to memorialize Roger Williams' ideals of freedom of religion and citizen participation in government.

Roger Williams Park — About 100 acres of land which became the nucleus for this park was bequeathed to the city under the will of Betsey Williams, who died in November, 1871. On this property was the red house now called the Betsey Williams Cottage built by Nathaniel Williams about 1773 for his son, James, father of Betsey.

As required in Betsey's will, the city erected a monument to Roger Williams in 1876-77. The city then commissioned landscape architect Horace W.S. Cleveland to transform Betsey William's farm into a modern urban park.

The Park Zoo, at the Elmwood Avenue entrance, features facilities containing over 400 animal and bird specimens. Included are a Children's Nature Center with a miniature farm and special displays on how animals move. A new seal exhibit opened in 1987 and a penguin exhibit in 1988. Construction of major African Savannah and Tropical America exhibits is ongoing. The third oldest zoo in the country, Roger Williams Park Zoo is the only accredited zoo in New England.

The Park Museum, built in 1894, houses exhibits related to natural history, including the Narragansett Bay Room and "The Jewel of Providence" illustrating the history of Roger Williams Park. Also at the museum is the Cormack Planetarium, where regular planetarium shows are offered. The museums's 150 seat auditorium is used for public programs and is available for rental to community groups.

The Charles H. Smith Greenhouses exhibit a wide variety of tropical and domestic plants. Special annual floral displays include the winter poinsettia show, the spring tulip and bulb display, and the fall Chrysanthemum show. Also of interest are the outdoor Hartman and Japanese Gardens which present seasonal displays of flowers and plantings and the Rose Garden located near the Elmwood Avenue entrance.

Another Park highlight is the Dalrymple Boathouse, constructed in 1897, which houses the administrative offices of the Providence Parks Department, rest rooms and boat rentals. The Temple to Music, given by the will of William C. Benedict in 1922 and dedicated in 1924, host numerous musical and performing arts events. The Casino, built in 1897-98 and restored in 1983, serves as an indoor facility for the performing arts and is available for social and civic events.

The Tim O'Neil Baseball Field at the foot of Hawthorne Street, west of the park tennis courts, was dedicated in September, 1946, in honor of the man who was for 44 years president of the Providence Amateur Baseball League. The Todd Morsilli Tennis Center, comprised of 10 clay courts and home to New England tennis tournaments, lies just east of the baseball field.

After the initial donation of land to the city by Betsey Williams, the city enlarged the Park. A gift of 8,285 square feet of land was made in 1880 by John M. and Susan P. Clemens. The rest of the park was acquired by purchase or condemnation. The latest acquisition was in 1927 when the city bought the Potter Farm of 19 acres at the Cranston end of the park. There are now 430 acres in the park, of which 103 are water.

There are nine lakes in the park; Roosevelt Lake near Elmwood Avenue, formerly known as "Bandstand Lake", Polo Lake, the Zoo Swamp, Willow Lake, Pleasure Lake, more commonly called "Boathouse Lake", Cunliff Lake, south of Pleasure Lake and Deep Spring Lake, near Park Avenue, sometimes called "No Bottom Lake". Surrounding Noonan Island, in the southeast section of the park are Edgewood and Elm Lakes.

Hours vary. For more information call (401)785-9451.

MUSEUMS, LIBRARIES AND EXHIBITIONS

Haffenreffer Museum of Anthropology on Mount Hope Grant is located 17 miles southeast of Providence, in Bristol, Rhode Island. The Museum, donated to Brown University in 1955 by the family of Rudolf F. Haffenreffer Sr., has two major exhibit halls. One displays archaelogical and ethnological artifacts of North American Indians. The other is devoted to anthropological materials from other parts of the world: Meso-America, South America, Oceania, Asia and Africa. The exhibits are changed periodically to display the extensive collections. The hours are: June through August—Tuesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. September through December and March through May—Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. Closed January and February. Admission: adults, $1; children, 50 cents; senior citizens, 50 cents; and members of The Friends of the Haffenreffer Museum, free.

Annmary Brown Memorial, 21 Brown St. Established in 1907, acquired by Brown University by gift, Feb. 4, 1948. 100 pre-1900 paintings; 800 printed books of the 15th century, representing the earliest presses in Europe; American manuscripts of the Colonial, Revolutionary and Civil War periods. Hours: Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

John Carter Brown Library, an independently administered rare book library on the Brown University campus, specializing in the collection of historical sources relating to North and South America and the Caribbean between 1492 and ca. 1830. Exhibitions of rare books, prints, maps, and documents.

Hours: Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Free.

Brown University Libraries contain more than 4,784,969 books, maps, broadsides, manuscripts and other cataloged items. The Brown University Library is comprised of the following:

John D. Rockefeller Jr. Library, corner College and Prospect Streets, which opened in the autumn of 1964, houses the university's book and periodical collection in the social studies and humanities as well as the general reference collection, the central Cataloging and Acquistions Departments, and Government Documents.

The John Hay Library, corner College and Prospect Streets, houses the University Library's special collections. Open to the public for inspection of documents, manuscripts and other exhibitions.

On permanent exhibition: Webster Knight Collection of United States Postage Stamps and the Peltz Collection of United States Special Delivery Stamps; McLellan Lincoln Collection, consisting of books, manuscripts, paintings, engravings, etc. on Abraham Lincoln; Hoffman and Bullard Napoleon Collections, consisting of books in fine bindings, art objects, engravings and caricatures, and the Anne S.K. Brown Military Collection which includes exhibits of paintings, prints and model soldiers. Hours when Brown is in session, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Thursday, 7 to 9 p.m.

Pembroke Campus Library, located in Pembroke Hall, 172 Meeting St, contains a small general collection emphasizing literature and current publications.

The Sciences Library, located at Waterman and Thayer Streets, contains book and periodical collections covering all fields of science and medicine as well as a collection of U.S. Geological Survey maps. The mathematics collections is one of the notable American collections in this field.

Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design, 224 Benefit St. The museum has developed comprehensive collections with over 65,000 objects which range from antiquity to the present day. It ranks among the finest small museums in the nation and is known for its holdings in paintings, sculpture, decorative, Oriental, and ethnographic arts. HISTORIC STREETS

Benefit Street — Constructed in 1856 for the benefit of those who had built homes on the sidehill, it wound and twisted to avoid ancestral graveyards. Later straightened when inmates of graves were removed to North Burial Ground.

Prospect Street — Laid out from Olney Street to Jail Lane, now Meeting Street, in 1771.

Towne Street — (Now North and South Main Street) was first shore road from Fox Point into the country.

Westminster Street — ordered laid out 1706 and in 1763 a lottery was established "for rendering possible and commodious a straight and very fine street from the Great Bridge into the country." The amount to be raised was 600 pounds sterling.

Weybosset Street — Name derived from Wapwayset (also spelled Weypoiset). Originally the Wapwayset Indian trail which followed the pathway that led to what is known as Elmwood, but in 1661 and for many years later known as "Weybosset Plaine."

POINT STREET VIADUCT

Connecting the west end of the Point Street Bridge with Allens Avenue, the viaduct was opened formally on Nov. 3, 1940. A two-lane overhead highway, 15 feet above street level, it was built as a PWA project at a total cost of $870,000, of which $270,000 was a federal grant. Since the opening of Interstate Route 195, the need to route heavy traffic over the busy Point Street-Allens Avenue intersection has decreased and the viaduct was torn down in the summer of 1979.

Historical Data

One of four original towns of Rhode Island, Warwick, after 190 years as a township, became Rhode Island's seventh city with the ratification of the City Charter Act on April 22, 1931.

Warwick dates back to Jan. 12, 1642 when Samuel Gorton purchased from Miantonomi the Shawomet land, named Warwick, in honor of the Earl of Warwick. The town of Warwick was divided March 14, 1913, the present city retaining the name of Warwick. The new town was named West Warwick.

Warwick became a city April 22, 1931 under an act signed by the governor March 31. At a special election held April 21, the act was adopted by a vote of 1,050 to 929. The first election of the new government under the City Charter was Nov. 8, 1932. The new officials were inaugurated Jan. 2, 1933.

Historical Facts

Woonsocket, sixth largest city in the state, was set off from Cumberland and Smithfield in 1867 and incorporated as a city in June 13, 1888. The name, of Indian origin, means "thunder mist."

The city has an area of 7.9 square miles. Located on the northern boundary of the state, it is 15 miles from Providence, 35 miles from Boston and 25 miles from Worcester.

The Blackstone River, which courses throughout most of the city, and many hills are distinctive topographical features.

The first European settlers in the area which was inhabited by the Nipmuc Indians, were Richard Arnold and Samuel Comstock in 1666.

Woonsocket, a manufacturing city, is made up predominantly of Franco-Americans whose forebearers came from Canada to work in the textile mills. It is the national headquarters for L'Union St. Jean Baptiste, Franco-American Society.

The city is the commercial center for a large area of northern Rhode Island and south-central Massachusetts. In 1953, it became the first city in Rhode Island to operate under a home rule charter.

A multi-million-dollar urban renewal project was undertaken in the Social Flatlands section of the city downtown beginning in 1970 and now is largely complete. City officials consider this a major step in the commercial rebirth of Woonsocket. The textile industry is leading employer with apparel, machinery, plastics and electronics making up the bulk of the remainder.

Land area — 7.9 square miles.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

The last person executed in Rhode Island was John Gordon, who was hung in 1845 for the murder of Amasa Sprague. Capital punishment was abolished in the state February 11, 1852.

However, on June 26, 1974, the General Assembly passed a new capital punishment law which stated that anyone who committed murder while confined in the Adult Correctional Institutions would be condemned to death. Punishment would be by lethal gas.

This law was declared unconstitutional by the R. I. Supreme Court on February 19, 1979.

MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS IN R.I.

Rhode Island driving licenses are issued for five years and expire on the licensee's birthday. Licenses are plastic cards 2½ inches by 3½ inches, and have a distinguishing number assigned to the licensee, the full name, date of birth, residence address, brief description, photograph, and signature. Those under 18 receive licenses of a different color.

Licenses are available to anyone who has reached the age of 16 and has completed written, driving and eye tests. Applicants under 18 must complete a 30-hour course in driver education. Learner permits may be used up to 90 days, provided a licensed driver over 18 is in the car. Chauffeur licenses are restricted to those who have driven at least one year.

The fee for an operator's first license is $8. Renewal is $20; with the exception of any person 70 years old or older for whom the renewal fee is $8.00. There is a fee of $5 for first license examination, a charge of $5 for duplicate replacement of lost license.

A staggered registrations system has been in effect since 1980. Fees range from $10 for passenger cars weighing 2,500 pounds or less, up to $33 for cars of more than 6,000 pounds. No motor vehicle owned by a person under 18 may be registered without proof of financial responsibility and application signed by a parent or guardian.

Title certificates are required for all motor vehicles designated as models 10 years old or newer.

The state financial responsibility law requires a report to the Registry of Motor Vehicles of any accident causing personal injury or more than $500 property damage, the report to be made within 10 days of the accident. A motorist in an accident who does not have liability insurance may be required to post a bond or other form of financial responsibility.

Front seat belts are required on all models since 1964. Annual equipment inspections are required by law. An implied consent law calls for automatic license suspension when a drunken driving suspect refuses an alcohol chemical test.

MOTHER'S DAY

Mother's Day was established in 1907 by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, whose mother died in 1906. To her memory, she invited friends to join in the project to obtain offical approval of dedicating the second Monday in May as Mother's Day. Philadelphia first observed it May 10, 1908.

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES IN R.I.

BROWN UNIVERSITY

Providence, RI 02912

Brown University was founded in 1764 at Warren, first named Rhode Island College, renamed as Brown in 1804 in honor of Nicholas Brown, an original incorporator and benefactor. It is the seventh oldest college in the United States.

The first class was graduated in 1769. In 1770 the college moved to Providence, housed in what is now University Hall, a building designated as a national historic landmark. From 1776 to 1782, during the America Revolution the college was closed while faculty and students, "almost to the man," were engaged in the service to their country, and University Hall was used as a barracks and hospital for American troops and for French soldiers of Rochambeau.

Granted an original charter guaranteeing uninterrupted liberty of conscience, the college's charter was further amended in 1926 and 1942 removing all denominational restrictions for the presidency and membership in the corporation.

The university has an undergraduate college and the graduate school for men and women, established as a separate school in 1927.

The first women were admitted in 1891, with the establisment of the Women's College, later named Pembroke College in 1928. For many years the women had a seperate campus and extracurricular life while participating in classes with the men and earning Brown degrees.

In 1971 the Brown Corporation voted to merge the two undergraduate colleges. In 1973, the Corporation approved a Medical Education Program leading to the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

Curriculum

Candidates for the following degrees are enrolled at the University: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Master of Arts, Master of Science, Master of Arts in Teaching, Master of Medical Science, Doctor of Medicine, Doctor of Philosophy, and Doctor of Arts. Students may elect to take a five-year course leading to degrees in both Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science in several categories. Five-year courses leading to both B.S. and M.S. degrees also are offered for engineering students interested in applied research.

Brown awards the Bachelor of Arts degree in more than 60 areas of the humanities, social sciences, mathematics, and natural and physical sciences. The Bachelor of Science is conferred in applied mathematics, engineering, psychology, chemistry, pure mathematics, biology, physics, and geological sciences. In addition, there are extensive opportunities for self-designed independent concentration programs.

A seven-year M.D. degree program was inaugurated in the fall of 1973 with the first 58 M.D.'s graduated in June, 1975. The 1988 graduating class included 82 M.D.'s. The M.D. degree program is an expansion of the six-year Master of Medical Science program begun at Brown in 1963. Eight area hospitals are affiliated with Brown's medical school, along with a number of other health facilities in the New England area.

In fall 1984, Brown announced its Program in Liberal Medical Education (PLME). The PLME fully integrates the four undergraduate college years with the four medical school years, making a single eight-year continuum of medical education. Nearly all medical students at Brown will be admitted to the PLME directly from high school.

Under a variety of grants, the university conducts programs for training of secondary school teachers through a graduate summer school, internship training involving interchange of experienced and pre-service teachers, special training for teachers of science and mathematics and also a five-year master's degree program.

Enrollment

The 1987-1988 enrollment was 7,157. This includes 5,547 undergraduates; 1,324 in the graduate school; and 286 in the Program in Medicine.

Faculty

The faculty numbers over 880 with more than 90 percent holding doctorates.

Tuition

Tuition is $13,375 per year. Room and board is $4,289.

Endowment

As of June 30, 1988, the endowment was approximately $370 million.

Corporation and Officers

The Corporation of Brown University consists of the Board of Fellows of 12 members and the Board of Trustees of 42 members. Of the latter body, 14 are elected upon nomination of the Associated Alumni of Brown University.

Administration Officers: President—Vartan Gregorian; Provost—Maurice Glicksman; Dean of the Faculty—John Quinn; Senior Vice President—Frederick M. Bohen; Vice President, Biology and Medicine—Pierre M. Galletti, M.D; Vice President, University Relations—Robert A. Reichley; Vice President of Development—Samuel Babbitt; Vice President for Computing and Information Services—Brian L. Hawkins; Dean of Medicine—David S. Buildings and Grounds

University Hall, one of the finest examples in the country of Colonial collegiate architecture, was the sole building on the campus until 1822 when Hope College was built. Manning Hall, the third building, was constructed in 1834.

Included within the main campus are 154 buildings (as of July 1, 1988), including libraries and athletic complexes. Eighty of these are part of the original college campus, bounded approximately by Hope and Prospect Streets on the east and west, and Bowen and Meeting Streets on the north and south. Other noteworthy buildings include the Barus and Holley Building, housing physics and engineering; the John Hay Library; the Rockefeller Library; Faunce House, headquarters for social and recreational activities of undergraduates and for student organizations; the John Carter Brown Library; the Jesse Metcalf Chemical Laboratory; the Walter S. Hunt Laboratory of Psychology; Gardner House, the university guest house; Alumnae Hall; Andrews Hall; the List Art Building and the 14-story Science Library, the Geology-Chemistry Building, and the Thomas J. Watson, Sr., Center for Information Technology.

In October 1971, 27 buildings were added to Brown's existing facilities when the University purchased the entire campus of Bryant College for $5,102,204.

In 1983, the Gould Computer laboratory — which houses Foxboro Auditorium, the world's first instructional laboratory serviced by a high-speed local area network — opened its doors. In 1984, Darling House was renovated to house the Institute for Research in Information and Scholarship (IRIS), which oversees the campus-wide experiment in scholarly computing. The George V. Meehan Auditorium was completed in 1962. The new Geology-Chemistry Building, which houses departmental offices and laboratories, was opened in 1982.

Two modern dormitory units, Emery and Woolley Halls, were added in 1963 to Morriss and Champlin Halls, which were dedicated in 1960. The first portions of the new Pembroke dormitory complex were opened in September, 1974.

The Wriston Quadrangle, providing accommodations for 1,026 students, was completed in 1952. The quadrangle is unique in that it includes 9 fraternities and 1 sorority as well as nine dormitory sections and the Sharpe Refectory dining hall.

The Keeny Triangle, formerly known as the West Quadrangle, was completed in the fall of 1957. It houses 614 students, both freshmen and upper-classmen and includes six connected houses with two inner courts.

The graduate center complex was dedicated in the fall of 1968. It houses some 443 students in four separate dormitories, all connected to a multipurpose commons building.

A new bio-medical center, containing a four-story research tower, two below-ground teaching floors, and a five-story animal care facility, opened in 1969. A new center for Health Care Studies, housing lecture halls, classrooms, and offices for several health care projects, was added to the Bio-Med Center in February, 1982.

The Albert and Vera List Art Building, a five-story structure housing the University's programs in studio art and art history, was opened in 1971. New performing arts centers at Lyman Hall and on the East Campus were dedicated in April 1979, ending a $2.9 million renovation project assisted by a challenge grant from the Krege Foundation.

The Thomas J. Watson, Sr., Center for Information Technology (CIT), a $40-million, 108,000-square-foot-building, was completed and opened in 1988. The CIT building, dedicated in October 1988, houses the entire Department of Computer Science, new computer-equipped language laboratories, virtually all Computing and Information Services, and several new electronic classrooms.

Library

The University Library system contains outstanding collections in the humanities and social sciences, and it is particularly strong in classics, literature, history, mathematics, the history of mathematics and science. The combined holdings of Brown's libraries numbers more than 4,450,000 items.

Included in the system are three main libraries: the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Library, which contains the general collection of humanities and social sciences; the John Hay Library which contains a number of notable collections; and the Sciences Library, a 14-story structure opened in 1972. The John Carter Brown Library has the premier collection of Americana in the world with more than 40,000 books, maps and manuscripts dealing with American history from 1492 to about 1835. The Annmary Brown Memorial, transferred from private hands to the university in 1948, has one of the world's finest collections of books published before 1501. Pembroke Library has a varied collection of books and periodicals, including current interest and extra-curricular materials and a collection of recently acquired popular fiction and non-fiction. The newly constructed Virginia Baldwin Orwig Music Library houses the general collections of music materials, including books, periodicals, scores and sound recordings.

Museum

Brown owns the Haffenreffer Museum of Anthropology, containing a museum collection of America Indian objects and other anthropological items, as well as the 370 acres of land in Bristol on which the museum is located. The land was donated by the R.F. Haffenreffer Family Foundation in 1955.

The David Winton Bell Gallery, housed in the List Art Center, presents five to seven major exhibitions annually. In addition to temporary exhibitions, the Gallery administers an extensive collection of prints, drawings and photographs dating from the 16th century to the present.

Computing Facilities

In 1981, the university installed a campus-wide coaxial cable network to provide computer services to all 126 buildings on campus. The network, "BRUNET," is the largest and most heavily used university broadband network in the world.

The University's new Center for Information Technology (CIT) houses the Department of Computer Science, the Computer Store, Management Information Services, User Services, Network

Operations, the University's mainframe and operations/dispatch staff, more workstation-equipped classrooms and new state-of-the-art language labs.

Laboratories

The original charter of the University contains the provision, "the public teaching shall in general respect the sciences." As a result, the University has always emphasized instruction in science. It possesses modern laboratory facilities for experimental work in applied mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, geology, biology, botany, psychology and engineering.

Athletic Facilities

Facilities for physical education and athletic activity include a 20,000-seat football stadium and the Hunter S. Marston Boathouse on the Seekonk River. The Wendell R. Erickson Athletic Complex sits on the 39-acre Aldrich-Dexter site acquired by the University in 1960. In 1962, the Meehan Auditorium and hockey rink was built. In 1972, the Smith Swimming Center, which includes an Olympic-size swimming pool and squash courts, was added. In 1981, the Olney-Margolies Athletic Center was dedicated. It contains a 54,000 square-foot fieldhouse which can be used as a track, basketball courts, tennis courts, volleyball courts, and batting and golf cages, as well as a 1.8 acre rooftop playing field. It also contains a dance studio and nautilus and universal exercise rooms.

The Paul Bailey Pizzitola Memorial Sports Center, completed in early 1989, is 70 feet high and contains courts for men's and women's intercollegiate basketball, volleyball, wrestling and gymnastics. It also has a weight room, six squash courts, four tennis courts on the upper level and a room for other gymnastics. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the new gym is a fabric roof made of Teflon-coated fiberglass, a translucent material that covers the tennis courts.

BRYANT COLLEGE

Smithfield, RI 02917

Founded in 1863, Bryant College is a non-profit institution operating under a Board of Trustees. It is a coeducational college of business administration. Bryant College is located on a 295-acre campus in suburban Smithfield. The college is fully accredited and offers associate's, bachelor's, and master's degree programs.

Curriculum

The undergraduate academic program leads to the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree and offers major concentrations in accounting; applied actuarial mathematics; business communications; computer information systems; economics; finance; hotel, restaurant, and institutional management; management; and marketing.

Evening Division

The Evening Division offers Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degrees in accounting; computer information systems; economics; finance; management; marketing. The Evening Division also offer an Associate of Science in general business. Courses are offered at Smithfield and in Warwick.

Enrollment

Bryant enrolls approximately 3,000 in the Day school, 1,800 in the Evening Division, and 1,200 in the Graduate School.

Graduate School

Advanced programs in the Graduate School lead to the degree of Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.) with concentrations in accounting, finance, management, health care management, computer information systems and entrepreneurship, and the degree of Master of Science in Taxation (M.S.T). Since most students have full-time positions, courses are offered in the afternoons, evenings and Saturdays on campus and off-campus at the Naval Education and Training Center, Newport; the Junior Achievement Building, 270 Weybosset St., Providence, and Women and Infants Hospital, Providence.

Center for Management Development

Workshops, seminars, conferences and on-site training programs provide professional continuing education for individuals in a variety of fields and specializations. Professional continuing education courses are also offered through the Center at its Warwick facility and on the Smithfield campus.

Business Development Center

The Small Business Development Center (SBDC) at Bryant provides free consulting and low-cost business development seminars to Rhode Island's small business entrepreneurs and operators. Counseling and training includes such areas as personnel, finance, marketing, organization, production, accounting and technical assistance.

Faculty

The faculty numbers approximately 170 in the Day School, 125 in the Evening Division, and 70 in the Graduate School. It includes teachers of liberal arts studies, certified public accountants, lawyers, and business specialists.

Tuition and Fees

Tuition for fall and spring semesters is $7,648 for full-time undergraduates. A supplement is prepared annually for Intersession and Summer Session fees. Board and room for fall and spring semesters range from $4,229 to $5,481, depending on living accommodations. Scholarships, loans and self-help opportunities are available.

Officers and Administration

Buildings and Grounds

Bryant moved to its Smithfield Campus in the fall of 1971. The hub of the new campus is the "Unistructure" which includes a rotunda large enough to hold 1,200 persons, classrooms, a library with a capacity for 100,000 volumes, special study rooms, dining facilities, indoor pool and locker rooms, student lounges, laboratories, faculty and administration offices and auditoriums. The Management Resource Complex, built in 1984, is also housed in the Unistructure.

The dormitory complex is adjacent to the main building. Each dormitory is four stories high and is designed in suite arrangements. Each suite consists of a living room and three bedrooms. Dormitories also contain lounges and study areas.

In addition, townhouses accommodate 250 students. Each air-conditioned unit contains four bedrooms, a living-dining room and kitchen.

Both freshmen dormitories are four-story brick buildings with separate residence wings connnected by a main lounge. Designed to house 300 students each, the dorms' bedrooms are interconnected by central lounges. The dormitories meet all federal regulations for the handicapped.

Koffler Technology Center, a sixteen-sided, four-level wood sheathed building, is a state-of-the-art computer center. Bryant Center is the "living room" of the campus, a student union opened in 1986. It houses a "food mall" and dining halls, a bookstore, TV room, lounges, meeting rooms, student organization offices, chapel and game room.

The Multipurpose Activities Center (MAC) houses indoor basketball and tennis courts, racquetball courts, the student radio station (WJMF) and the student newspaper (THE ARCHWAY).

Student Activities and Athletics

Varsity teams, nicknamed "The Indians," compete in baseball, basketball, bowling, cross-country, golf, tennis, track, soccer and volleyball. A separate women's varsity program consists of teams in tennis, field hockey, volleyball, basketball, soccer, cross-country, track and softball. Intramural softball, basketball, volleyball, football and bowling teams compete for annual trophies. Among campus organizations are 14 fraternities and sororities, student programming and government boards and religious, musical, dramatic and professional groups.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF RHODE ISLAND

Knight Campus, 400 East Ave., Warwick, RI 02886-1805
Flanagan Campus, 1762 Louisquisset Pike, Lincoln, RI 02865-4585

Community College of Rhode Island was founded under authority of the Rhode Island Legislature in 1960 with its original name Rhode Island Junior College. The name was officially changed to Community College of Rhode Island in June of 1980 to better describe the scope of services that the College provides to all Rhode Islanders.

The first campus of Community College of Rhode Island opened its doors in the fall of 1964 with temporary quarters in Providence and the first graduation was held in June of 1966. The first permanent campus of Community College of Rhode Island opened in September, 1972, and is known as Knight Campus, located in Warwick adjacent to Rts. 95 and 295. A second permanent campus in the Blackstone Valley area in Lincoln was opened in September, 1976, and is known as the Dr. William F. Flanagan campus. CCRI's Urban Educational Center, located in Providence, brings educational opportunities to inner city residents. Satellite campuses are located in Burrillville, East Providence, Middletown, Newport, Westerly, and Woonsocket.

The college offers associate degrees in Arts, in Fine Arts, in Science, in Applied Science and Applied Science in Technical Studies. CCRI offers career programs which prepare students for entry level positions in a variety of technical occupations and academic programs which prepare students for transfer into baccalaureate programs at four-year colleges and universities. Many certificate programs are also offered.

Enrollment

From an original enrollment of 325 students, the College has expanded to more than 13,000 full and part-time students.

Faculty

There are almost 375 members of the faculty and administration in the current school year.

Tuition and Fees

The college is supported by appropriations from the General Assembly, but tuition and fees of $950 are charged to full-time students for the 1988-89 academic year.

Admissions Requirements

A high school diploma or its equivalent is required for the following programs: Nursing, Medical Laboratory Technician, Radiography (X-Ray), Cardio-Respiratory Care, Dental Assistant, Dental Hygene and Phlebotomy. In addition, individual departments may have specific admission requirements that students must meet.

Although a high-school diploma or its equivalent is not a general admission requirement of the College, provided the student is 18 years of age, it should be noted that financial aid applicants, intercollegiate athletic participants, applicants for veterans' benefits and in some cases students applying for transfer to some senior colleges must show evidence of a high school diploma or its equivalent.

Officers and Administration

Community College of Rhode Island is governed by the Board of Governors for Higher Education.

Administrative Officers: President—Edward J. Liston, B.S., M.B.A.; Vice President for Academic Affairs—Robert A. Silvestre, B.A., Ph.D.; Vice President for Business Affairs and Treasurer—Robert G. Henderson, B.S.; Vice President for Student Affairs—Raymond A. Ferland, A.B., M.S., M.C.P.,Ph.D.

JOHNSON & WALES UNIVERSITY

8 Abbott Park Place
Providence, RI 02903-3776

Johnson & Wales University, founded in 1914, is a private, non-profit, co-educational institution offering college courses in the field of business, food services, hospitality, teacher education and technology. In 1963 J&W was authorized to grant associate degrees in the arts and sciences. In 1970, the State approved a revised charter, allowing Johnson & Wales to award baccalaureate degrees. Since 1980, Johnson & Wales has been allowed to offer advanced degrees. In 1988, the school's name was officially changed to Johnson & Wales University from Johnson & Wales College. The University is nationally accredited by the Association of Independent Colleges and Schools.

Curriculum

The university offers multi-level degree and diploma programs through its Business, Culinary Arts and Professional Technology divisions, the College of Continuing Education and the Graduate School.

Master of Science degree programs are offered in Computer Education, Hospitality Administration and Managerial Technology. Seventeen Bachelor of Science degree majors are offered in the fields of business, computer science and electronic technology, equine studies, food service, hospitality and teacher education. Over thirty associate degrees are offered in these same fields of study, with all baccalaureate degree candidates first required to complete an associate degree specialization. One-year secretarial and dental and medical assistant programs are also offered.

The academic year consists of three 11-week trimesters. Summer terms are also offered.

Enrollment

Day students for 1988-89 totalled over 5,000 with 2,000 of these freshman students.

Culinary Arts Division

The Culinary Arts Division of the university, established in 1973, offers a two-year Associate in Occupational Science degree program in culinary arts. Enrollment in this program numbers over 2,000.

NEW ENGLAND INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

2500 Post Road
Warwick, RI 02886

The New England Institute of Technology is a private, non-profit career college offering courses of study at both the associate and the baccalaureate degree levels. New England Tech is the only college in Rhode Island accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc., and by the Accrediting Commission of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools.

With an annual enrollment of approximately 2000 students, New England Institute of Technology is currently the largest private technical college in southeastern New England. More Rhode Islanders enroll at New England Tech than at any other private post-secondary institution in the state. The programs include a blend of extensive theoretical and hands-on training in the technologies as well as a selection of liberal arts courses leading to the Associate of Science or Bachelor in Science Degree. This combination makes NEIT graduates particularly attractive to employers seeking employees with analytical and critical thinking capabilities as well as technical skills.

Curriculum

The college awards the Associate in Science degree in the following technologies: Administrative Assistant; Administrative Medical Assistant; Architectural Drafting; Automotive; Building Construction/Cabinetmaking; Computer Programming; Electronics; Electrical; Electro-Mechanical Drafting; Marine Management; Mechanical Drafting; Plumbing/Heating; and Refrigeration/Air Conditioning/Heating. Bachelor's Degree programs are offered in Electronics Engineering, Computer Programming, Business Management and Machine and Tool Design Technologies.

The Associate in Science Degree program at New England Tech consists of two academic years of six quarters, and can be completed in eighteen months in either day or evening sessions. The Bachelor of Science Degree program requires an additional eighteen months of training beyond the Associate Degree and is also available in day or evening session.

The Major Home Appliance program is a 20 week course which meets three nights a week. A diploma is awarded at the conclusion of the course.

Enrollment

The annual enrollment at New England Tech is approximately 2,000 students.

Faculty

There are 62 full-time trained professionals on the New England Tech faculty.

Entrance Requirements

The college requires a high school diploma or a General Equivalency Diploma (GED) for admission into the Associate Degree Program. Entrance into the Bachelor's Degree Program requires an Associate Degree from New England Tech or from a recognized institution of higher learning. Credit may be extended by the respective department head and the Vice President for Academic Administration for related work experience and courses taken elsewhere.

Tuition

Tuition for incoming freshmen in the fall of 1988 is $5,775 per academic year in the Associate and Bachelor's Degree program. Tuition for the Major Home Appliance Program is $2,200. The Financial Aid Office offers a full complement of federally-sponsored financial aid programs.

Officers of the Administration

Buildings and Grounds

New England Tech has two campuses in Rhode Island. Located at 184 Early St. in Providence in a 20,000-square-foot facility are laboratories and classrooms for the Refrigeration, Plumbing, Heating, Electrical and the early quarters of the Electronics Technology programs. Parking facilities adjacent to this campus provide free off-street parking for approximately 200 cars.

The Warwick campus, developed since 1981, now has four buildings on approximately 10 acres of land. Located here are the Admimistrative Offices as well as laboratories and classrooms for the Administrative Assistant, Administrative Medical Assistant, Computer Programming, Architectural, Electro-Mechanical, Mechanical Drafting, Electronics, Building Construction and Cabinetmaking, Marine Management and Automotive technologies. This facility also houses a microcomputer laboratory featuring Wang, Lanier and IBM personal computers, and the Authorized Training Facility for Rhode Island and Southeastern New England for AutoCAD, the largest selling computer aided drafting software.

Library

The Learning Resources Center, opened in 1985, houses an up-to-date collection of materials in the technological areas of study taught at New England Tech. Resouces include books, periodicals, computer software, and media materials which provide a multi-faceted approach to learning through print, audio/visual, and computer technology.

Laboratories

The educational programs at New England Tech emphasize hands-on training and utilize the latest in modern equipment and spacious well-lit laboratories. Students spend almost 50 percent of their time in a laboratory setting.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE

River Avenue at Eaton Street
Providence, RI 02918

Founded by the late Right Rev. Matthew Harkins, Bishop of the Diocese of Providence, Providence College is the only institution of higher education in North America to be conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Fathers and Brothers, a Catholic order whose origin dates back to the thirteenth century.

The charter, granted the college by the Rhode Island General Assembly in 1917, defines as the college's mission "the promotion of virtue and piety and learning." The college corporation is empowered to confer such degrees as are usually awarded by colleges and universities.

The college opened in September 1919 with an enrollment of 71, a faculty of nine, and a single building located on 17 wooded acres. The college became co-educational in the fall of 1971.

Curriculum

The college's undergraduate program offers Bachelor of Arts degrees in art and art history, economics, English, social science, history, humanities. American studies, biology, chemistry, education, Latin American studies, mathematics/computer science, music, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religious studies, sociology, social work and theater arts. Bachelor of Science degrees are offered in business administration, engineering/physics/systems, health services administration, biology, and chemistry.

Providence College also conducts an Honors Program for selected superior students who are offered the opportunity to proceed at a more rapid pace and pursue their studies in greater depth than the regular program of study allows.

Among the special programs offered by the college is a four-semester, interdisciplinary course on the "Development of Western Civilization." In cooperation with Washington University in St. Louis, and Columbia University, Providence sponsors a five-year engineering/liberal arts program which leads to a B.A. degree in one of seven engineering fields.

A cooperative program with Columbia University enables Providence College students to receive a B.A. in pre-nursing studies after four years at PC and a B.S. degree in nursing from Columbia University at the end of the fifth year.

A "Business Studies Program" is also available for non-business majors who wish to pursue an elective business track leading to a certificate of Business Studies.

"Providence-In-Europe" offers junior-year students the opportunity to study abroad at select universities in Switzerland, Italy, Japan, Germany, Spain, and England. Credits earned may be applied to their academic program.

School of Continuing Education

The School of Continuing Education affords an individual the opportunity to continue his or her education in any one of a variety of capacities. as a degree candidate in one of the bachelor or associate degree programs; as a student in a non-degree program; or for personal enrichment. Candidates are able to earn bachelor's degrees in accounting, the humanities, fine arts, business administration, health services administration, and fire science. Associate's degrees are granted in labor relations, fire safety, nursing home administration, liberal studies and administrative management. Certificate programs are also available in administrative management, labor relations and nursing home administration.

Graduate School

The Graduate School of Providence College exists to develop scholars and teachers to promote scientific research and to provide appropriate opportunities for qualified persons to pursue advanced studies. Courses are open to anyone who fulfills academic requirements for admission.

Master's degrees are offered in business administration, education, history, religious education, Biblical studies and religious studies. Doctoral degrees are offered in chemistry and history.

Enrollment

Enrollment at Providence College is approximately 3,769 undergraduates (fall semester); approximately 513 graduate students (fall semester); and 2,200 students in the School of Continuing Education (fall semester). There are approximately 3005 students enrolled in the ROTC program including students from Providence College, Brown University, Johnson and Wales University, Roger Williams College, Salve Regina College, Southeastern Massachusetts University, Rhode Island College and Bryant College.

Faculty

The full-time faculty numbers 243, including 50 Dominican Fathers and Sisters.

RHODE ISLAND SCHOOL OF DESIGN

2 College St.
Providence, RI 02903

Rhode Island School of Design, incorporated in 1877, is a privately endowed co-educational college providing professional education in visual arts leading to degrees of Bachelor of Industrial Design, Bachelor of Interior Architecture, Bachelor of Architecture, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Landscape Architecture, Master of Fine Arts, Master of Arts in Teaching, and Master of Arts in Art Education and Master of Industrial Design.

The school opened its doors in the Hoppin Homestead Building at 357 Westminster St. and in 1893 relocated at 11 Waterman St. in a new building that now comprises the nucleus of the present college property.

Curriculum

The college offers 17 Bachelor's degree programs and 11 Master's degree programs in a full range of fine arts, architecture and design disciplines. Professional offerings are balanced with a liberal arts curriculum comprised of art history, English and special studies. Freshmen begin professional preparation with a prescribed curriculum in the Division of Freshman Foundation.

The school maintains a center in Rome where 35 selected juniors and seniors spend a year studying with European artists, supervised by RISD faculty members. A cooperative arrangement permits students of both RISD and Brown University to elect courses at the other institution.

Summer Programs

Summer workshops for credit are offered in a cross section of the arts for college students and adults. A five-week pre-college foundation program is given for high school juniors and seniors.

Art teachers can earn a Masters of Arts in Art Education in a program spanning three consecutive summers. Summer programs abroad are offered. A summer session for fall transfer students is required.

Continuing Education

RISD's Continuing Education program includes seven-week mini courses, special events, workshops, certificate programs in Advertising Design, Interior Design, Scientific and Technical Illustration and Culinary Arts and a summer program. The Continuing Education faculty is made up of RISD faculty members and local professional artists, architects and designers.

Enrollment

College enrollment for 1988-89 is 1,918. Approximately 2,500 are enrolled in evening extension school, 155 in junior school and 1,500 in the summer program.

Faculty

Faculty consists of 200 men and women. Administration, secretarial and maintenance staffs total 345.

Tuition

Tuition in the regular degree programs is $10,360 a year. The fee in the extension school is $200 per term for non-credit courses and $230 per term credit courses. Tuition for the pre-college summer session is $1,155. Student aid from RISD funds and outside sources is available on the basis of provable need and scholarship.

Endowment

RISD has an endowment fund with a book value of $41,044,934 and a recent estimated market value of $51,599,707 as of June 30, 1987.

Of the 37 buildings comprising the School of Design, 13 are in the blocks bounded by Waterman, Benefit, College, and Canal Streets. The main building on College Hill was dedicated in 1937 in memory of Helen Adelia Rowe Metcalf. Other important buildings include the Waterman Building, erected in 1893; the Metcalf auditorium at Market Square which also houses the video and film studies program; the Jesse Metcalf Memorial Building on North Main Street including the foundry, sculpture, ceramic, glass, wood and metal labs; Memorial Hall at 236 Benefit St. and the adjacent Eliza G. Radeke Memorial Museum of Art with Pendleton House; the 197-year-old Market Building; the former People's Savings Bank; the Bayard Ewing Building which houses the Architectural Studies Division at 231 South Main St., the new dormitories; Benson Hall; Carr House at Waterman and Benefit Streets; the Woods-Gerry House at 62 Prospect St. housing administrative offices and exhibition galleries; the newly renovated 4-building Design Center, at 30 North Main St.; and Tillinghast Place located in Barrington on 33 acres of donated land used for recreation.

Museum of Art

The Museum of Art, at 224 Benefit St., under the directorship of Franklin W. Robinson, is open to the public Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday from 12 to 8 p.m., and on Sundays and holidays from 2 to 5 p.m. The Museum is closed on Mondays and on New Year's Day, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas. June 15 through August, Wednesday-Saturday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Museum has developed comprehensive collections ranging from antiquity to the present day and ranks among the finest small museums in the nation. It is known throughout the world for its holdings in Classical art (Greek, Etruscan and Roman); its 19th-century French and American paintings; the Abbey Aldrich Rockefeller Collection of Japanese Bird and Flower Prints; and the Lucy Truman Aldrich Collection of porcelains and textiles. Also important are the Nancy Sayles Day Collection of Modern Latin American Art and the Albert Pilavin Collection of 20th-century American Art. The Museum also possesses galleries devoted to Medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, Far Eastern and ethnographic art, as well as a costume institute and a prints and drawings cabinet of some 8,500 sheets, accompanied by a study room for scholars and students.

An integral part of the Museum is the Pendleton House, added in 1906 to house the Charles L. Pendleton Collection of English and American Furniture. The first collection of its kind to enter an American museum, the Pendleton House was used as the model for the American Wing of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art.

A lending collection to include documented slide units geared to school curricula, three-dimensional case shows, color reproductions of works of art and a cross-referenced library of over 4,000 color slides is available to primary and secondary schools from the Museum's Education Department and Extension Services. Tours by museum staff members may be arranged for special groups. Courses are given for youngsters, high school students and adults. There are informal "Artwalk" tours for children and adults Saturdays at 11 a.m. to 12 noon, and programs for the family most Sundays at 3 p.m. Lunch art tours every Friday at 12:15 p.m.

Library

The library is located on the second floor of the college building at 238 Benefit St. It contains 70,000 volumes; 7,000 bound periodicals; 115,000 slides; and numerous color reproductions, mounted photographs, clippings and recordings. The general public may use the reading room during regular hours, 8:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursdays; 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Fridays; 12 to 8 p.m. Saturdays, and 2 to 10 p.m. Sundays during the academic year.

ROGER WILLIAMS COLLEGE

Bristol, RI 02809

Roger Williams College is an independent coeducational college of liberal arts and professional studies accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc. It was founded in 1948, although it dates back to 1919 when Northeastern University established a branch in Providence offering courses in business and law. In 1956 it was chartered by the state under the name of Roger Williams Junior College, and in 1967 received permission to offer the baccalaureate degree as well as the associate degree. At this time its name was changed to Roger Williams College. In 1972 it earned accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

The college's Fulton Campus, overlooking Mt. Hope Bay in Bristol, opened in September, 1969. It offers courses in business, engineering and technology, fine arts, humanities, mathematics/computer science, natural and social sciences. Among its most recent programs are an accredited five-year Bachelor of Architecture degree, two computer majors and a B.S. in construction science. The Providence Branch is maintained for the Division of Continuing Education.

Curriculum

The college awards the Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Architecture, Associate in Arts, and Associate in Science. Among its 32 majors are: administration of justice, business administration, management, accounting, marketing, architecture, civil engineering, electrical engineering, career writing, American studies, art, biology, marine biology, chemistry, historic preservation, paralegal studies, political studies, psychology, and theatre. An interdivisional major leading to a B.A. may be arranged. Qualified part-time students who are not degree candidates may enroll in individual courses as class space permits.

The College also offers a program in Cooperative Education which permits students to alternate a semester of classroom work with a semester of paid employment. This is available to students in all majors.

The Open Division program is designed primarily for working adults. It offers a flexible, individualized B.A. or B.S. program, and includes credit granted for past and present employment, military and other learning experiences. Study is through independent work and related job projects, as well as some classroom courses.

Division of Continuing Education

Roger Williams College offers evening degree programs at its facilities in Providence and Bristol. Evening students may earn associate and/or baccalaureate degrees in accounting, administration of justice, business administration, management, marketing, engineering technology, paralegal studies and social sciences.

A certificate program is offered in paralegal studies for those with a bachelor degree or experience in a law-related capacity. The college also offers associate and bachelor degrees in business administration to the personnel of the Naval Education and Training Center in Newport.

Summer Session

A summer session is available evenings in both Providence and Bristol. A course taken in this session is the equivalent to a full semester course. In addition, two intersessions in mid-winter and late spring permit study in a single subject.

Enrollment

There are 2,400 day students and 1,100 evening students as of September, 1988.

Faculty

The college's faculty consists of approximately 300 men and women.

Entrance Requirements

Freshmen entering as degree candidates must be high school graduates or possess a high school equivalency diploma.

Transfer students are welcome to apply at any point in their college career.

The college assesses and may award academic credit for life experiences by means of the College Level Examination Program (CLEP) or through examinations arranged with the college.

Tuition and Financial Aid

Tuition at the Bristol campus is $7,750. Room and board is $4,040 annually. Financial aid is available.

Buildings and Grounds

The Fulton campus opened in September, 1969, on a 63-acre site overlooking Mt. Hope Bay. The first seven buildings of the campus were a science-math building, classroom building, library, residence hall, dining lounge, administration building, and heating plant. A second residence hall opened in 1972, and a Student Center was completed in 1974.

In the spring of 1976, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare awarded to the College the former NIKE Missile site, 17 acres of land situated next to the campus. In 1983 a new Recreation Center opened and a waterfront residence complex for an additional 300 students was occupied in September. A Performing Arts Center and a new architecture building opened in 1987.

SALVE REGINA COLLEGE

Newport, RI 02840

Salve Regina, granted a charter by the General Assembly on March 22, 1934, is an institution of higher education for men and women in the liberal arts and sciences. The college was opened September 23, 1947.

Curriculum

Salve Regina offers academic programs in over forty areas of concentration leading to the associate and bachelor degrees and eleven concentrations leading to the master's degree. Programs offered on the graduate level include administration of justice, financial management, health services administration, international relations, liberal studies, and human development with specializations in gerontology, holistic counseling, human development and management.

Enrollment

Student enrollment for 1988-89 is approximately 2,200.

Faculty

The College faculty numbers approximately 200.

Tuition and Fees

The tuition rate is $8,400 a year; room and board is $4,600.

Campus

Salve Regina is located in a section of Newport that has been designated by the National Register of Historic Places as the Ochre Point-Cliffs Historic District.

Salve Regina's campus contains nineteen historic buildings built around the turn of the century. These former "summer cottages" bordering the Atlantic Ocean on Ochre Point, have been adapted to house administrative, educational and student facilities. An academic center and a student residence built in the 1960's have been added to the campus. Another student residence was opened in September, 1986. In 1987, Salve Regina renovated a carriage house, now known as The Munroe Center, a modern technology facility which houses the College's host computer, a data center, administrative offices, education, training communications and conference rooms.

THE UNIVERSITY OF RHODE ISLAND

Kingston, RI 02881

Founded as a land-grant college in 1892 and designated a Sea Grant college in 1971, the coeducational institution is assisted by the State of Rhode Island. Originally named the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, its name was changed to The University of Rhode Island in 1951.

Curriculum

Entering freshmen are enrolled in University College until they meet the requirements of one of the colleges in which undergraduates may earn Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Landscape Architecture, Bachelor of Music, Bachelor of General Studies and Associate of Science degrees. The colleges give students degrees in the fields of arts and sciences, business administration, engineering, human science and services, nursing, pharmacy and resource development. Most undergraduate programs may be completed in four years with exception of pharmacy which is five years. Dental hygiene is offered in both a four-year bachelors program and a two-year associate degree program. Students may elect a course in military science, from which a limited number are selected for advanced training leading to commissions in the Army.

Graduate study is offered leading to master's or doctoral degrees in many areas. There is a central Graduate School and a Graduate School of Oceanography.

In addition to strong research programs in various departments, the university has established specialized research through the Academic Computer Center, the Agricultural Experiment Station, the Center for Ocean Management Studies, the Consortium for the Development of Technology, the Graduate School of Oceanography, the Center for Atmospheric Chemistry Studies, the Core Facility, the Institute of Human Science and Services, the Institute for International Business, the Labor Research Center, the Research Center in Business and Economics, the Rhode Island Water Resources Center, the Robotics Research Center, the Sea Grant Program, the Program in Gerontology, the Laboratories for Scientific Criminal Investigation, the Laboratory for the Study of Information Science and the Small Business Development Center.

Extension and Summer Session

The College of Continuing Education in Providence offers extension courses in most academic areas at its Promenade and Gaspee Streets building and at three other locations in the state. It also runs a Conference Center and an Environmental Education Center at the W. Alton Jones Campus in West Greenwich. Summer terms offer regular instruction and special workshops and conferences.

The Cooperative Extension Service maintains regional offices in Newport, Greenville, and East Greenwich. It offers programs in home economics, 4-H youth development, community resource development, and agriculture.

Marine-oriented extension services include the Coastal Resources Center, the International Center for Marine Resource Development, and the Marine Advisory Service.

Enrollment

In the fall of 1987 there were 12,268 undergraduate and graduate students at URI, plus 3,007 persons enrolled in the College of Continuing Education. Summer 1988 enrollment totaled 7,050.

Faculty

The faculty numbers about 763 members, exclusive of administrative officers.

Tuition and Fees

In 1988-89 students who are Rhode Island residents pay a total of $2,381 a year in fees; out-of-state students pay $6,307. Room and board averages $3,716 a year for resident students.

Finances

The following are approximate figures for the fiscal year 1987-88. Assets totaled $221,585,755. Current revenue for this period was $163,915,774 from the following sources: state appropriations—$62,139,130; federal grants—$29,295,667; auxiliary enterprises—$24,509,421; student fees—$36,342,184; other sources—$11,629,372.

Current expenditures for the fiscal year total $162,414,824 which were: general administration and student services—$26,773,283; instruction and departmental research—$69,957,465; operation and maintenance of plant—$14,763,293; auxiliary enterprises—$24,768,945; student aid—$8,058,970; all other—$18,092,868.

Officers and Administration

The university is administered by a state Board of Governors for Higher Education.

Administrative Officers: President—Edward D. Eddy, Ph.D.; Provost—David M. Gitlitz, Ph.D.; Assistant Provost—Douglas M. Rosie; Vice Provost for Academic Programs and Services—M. Beverly Swan, Ph.D.; Vice Provost for Marine Affairs—Robert A. Duce, Ph.D.; Vice President for Business and Finance—Americo W. Petrocelli, Ph.D.; Vice President for University Relations—Thomas R. Buildings and Campuses

In addition to the main 1,200-acre campus at Kingston, the University has the 2,300-acre W. Alton Jones campus in West Greenwich, the 165-acre Narragansett Bay campus in Narragansett and the Continuing Education campus in Providence.

There are about 70 academic and service buildings on the Kingston campus which include a few converted private homes, the Chafee Social Science Center, the Biological Sciences Building and the College of Nursing Building. There are 25 University-owned residence and dining halls and 23 fraternity and sorority houses.

Student Activities

Men's and women's student government organizations and numerous extracurricular groups as well as 7 sororities and 16 fraternities are active on campus. With an athletic plant built around Meade Stadium, the Keaney gymnasium and the Tootell Physicial Education Center, URI engages in intercollegiate competition for men in football, basketball, track, baseball, golf, tennis, soccer, swimming, and cross country. Women's intercollegiate teams participate in basketball, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, lacrosse, softball, swimming and diving, tennis, cross country, track and volleyball. Both men and women compete in intramural programs.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS IN RHODE ISLAND

Rhode Island's banking laws permit a wide range of state-chartered financial institutions to function as full service institutions. Mutual savings banks and savings and loan associations chartered in Rhode Island are permitted to own commercial banks. Rhode Island was the first state to allow credit unions to have checking accounts.

There are five national banks: Centreville National Bank of Warwick, which is owned by a state-chartered mutual savings bank; Fleet National Bank, which is owned by Fleet Financial Group, Inc., the Providence-based bankholding company; People's Bank, N.A.; Bank of New England-Old Colony, N.A.; Rhode Island Hospital Trust National Bank, which is a subsidiary of RIHT Corporation, which is a wholly owned subsidiary of Bank of Boston Corp. Total assets at 1987 year end were $29,193,480,084.

There are three state-chartered savings banks, each with its own commercial bank affiliate. The Banking Division reports total assets for savings banks at $1,181,095,000 at the end of 1987.

Citizens Savings Bank, FSB which had 1987 year-end assets of $2,500,000,000. Old Stone Bank, FSB which had 1987 year-end assets of $3,836,497,000. are federally-chartered savings banks.

There are 13 state-chartered commercial banks or trust companies with year-end assets of $1,214,466,815 according to the Banking Division. As of year-end 1987, five of them were independent, two were owned by state-chartered mutual savings banks, three were owned by federally-chartered savings bank, one was owned by a state savings and loan association, one was owned by a state-chartered loan and investment company, and one was in state receivership.

There are three state-chartered savings and loan associations remaining, which had a total of $146,083,879 million in assets at year-end 1987, according to the Banking Division. They are the Newport Savings and Loan Association, Westerly Savings and Loan Association and Colonial Savings and Loan Association.

There were 11 loan and investment companies with 1987 year-end assets of $714,181,218.

There were 63 state-chartered credit unions, including the Rhode Island Credit Union League Corporate Credit Union which serves as a central bank for members. Assets totaled $1,942,104,000 as of Dec. 31, 1987. There are also 14 federally-chartered credit unions, with a total of $22,984,000 in assets, according to the Rhode Island Credit Union League, the trade union that represents credit unions in Rhode Island.

The Rhode Island Share and Deposit Indemnity Corp., a private organization, provides deposit insurance to member credit unions, banks and loan and investment companies. As of November 30, 1988 RISDIC listed 47 members and had total assets of $27,636,841.

HOSPITALS IN RHODE ISLAND

BUTLER HOSPITAL

345 Blackstone Blvd.
Providence, RI 02906

Butler Hospital is Rhode Island's only private adult/adolescent psychiatric hospital offering short term intensive treatment for patients 13 years of age or older and extended partial hospitalization care for outpatients.

The Inpatient Hospital consists of 108 general inpatient beds and a 12-bed intensive treatment unit for severely agitated or suicidal patients.

There are Partial Hospitalization Psychiatric Programs for patients requiring intensive psychiatric treatment without 24-hour care.

The Specialty Outpatient Programs provide treatment for prementrual syndrome, anxiety, obsessive compulsive disorders, alcohol and drug abuse, affective disorders, eating disorders, and psychogeriatric problems.

The Alcohol and Drug Treatment Services provide comprehensive treatment for drug abuse, cocaine addiction and the emotional problems associated with substance abuse. These services are available in the hospital's outpatient and partial hospital treatment programs. Detoxification, if needed, is provided in the inpatient facility.

Therapies offered at Butler include individual and group psychotherapy, behavior therapy, marital therapy, activities therapy, family therapy, chemotherapy, psychological testing, psychiatric casework and family counseling.

The hospital is affiliated with Brown University Division of Biology and Medicine and provides educational programs for mental health professionals. Psychiatry clerkships for medical students are offered as well as residency training programs and a clinical psychology internship program. Butler also offers clinical training to psychiatric nurses, social workers and occupational therapists and pharmacologists.

It has evaluation and research departments and an extensive psychiatric library.

Founded in 1844, Butler Hospital is the oldest hospital in Rhode Island and one of the oldest psychiatric hospitals in the country.

EMMA PENDLETON BRADLEY HOSPITAL

1011 Veterans Memorial Pkwy.
East Providence, RI 02915

Bradley Hospital opened its doors in 1931 for the study and care of children's nervous and mental disorders. It was the first children's neuropsychiatric hospital in this country. Originally conceived as a long-term residential treatment center known as the "Bradley Home", it was founded by the George Bradley family of Pomfret, Connecticut, whose only child could find no treatment for her afffliction, despite her family's wealth. The name was changed to Emma Pendleton Bradley Hospital on Oct. 24, 1957.

Bradley Hospital is a private, not-for-profit, acute care psychiatric center for infants, children, adolescents and their families. The inpatient program consists of 60 beds serving children and adolescents ages 5 through 18 (up to the age of 22 for the developmentally disabled). The outpatient programs include two day-hospital programs serving children from infancy through age 17; a Step Down program with a chemical dependency component and outpatient psychiatric, psychological and family counseling services.

The hospital provides psychiatric and neurological evaluations, individual therapy, family therapy, parent counseling, group therapy, behavioral therapy, speech and language therapy, special education therapies and psychological and neuropsychological evaluations.

Bradley Hospital is affiliated with the Brown University Program in Medicine and provides education and training for psychiatrists, child psychiatrists, pediatricians, psychologists and medical students. It also serves as a clinical training resource for several other colleges and universities in southeastern New England with programs in social work, nursing, speech and language, special education and clinical child care.

Bradley Hospital has long been a leading pioneer in research in the field of child psychiatry. The first studies of electroencephalography (EEG) and the use of amphetamines with hyperactive children were conducted at the hospital in the early 1940's. Currently, laboratory research studies are being conducted on sleep disorders, the identification of developmental problems through analyzing the cries of infants, teen suicide, childhood depression and the temperament of the young.

KENT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

455 Toll Gate Rd.
Warwick, RI 02886

Kent County Memorial Hospital, an acute care non-profit hospital, serves Kent County and surrounding areas. Kent was chartered by the state of Rhode Island in 1946 and opened as a 100-bed hospital in May, 1951. Building expansions in 1960, 1973 and 1981 brought the bed total to 359. The second largest hospital on one site in the state, Kent has emerged as a modern health care complex located on 57 acres in Warwick. The Kent County Mental Health Association and the Visiting Nurses Association are both located on Kent's campus.

Kent's medical staff, along with 1800 health care professionals, provide total clinical, diagnostic, therapeutic and support systems for each patient. Kent Hospital has the following specialized units: Medical-Surgical, Obstetrical-Gynecological, Pediatric and Psychiatric. Kent's Intensive Care Unit and its Extended Coronary Care Unit were each the first to open in Rhode Island. The hospital's Home Care Program, treating an average of well over 100 patients each day, was pioneered in 1964.

Kent's Emergency Services Department is open 365 days of the year, 24 hours each day. In 1985, an Express Treatment Unit was opened within the Emergency Services Department for the treatment of minor injuries and illness. As the second busiest Emergency Room in Rhode Island with over 66,000 patients each year, the hospital opened the Express Unit to reduce the waiting time and to facilitate treatment of minor injuries. Kent opened Rhode Island's first Outpatient Surgery Unit in 1975. Today, some 50% of routine surgical procedures are done on a one-day, outpatient basis.

Kent County Memorial Hospital has a twenty-six member voluntary Board of Trustees drawn from the community it serves.

Officers: Chairman—Allen H. Howland; First Vice Chairman—Domenic R. DiLuglio; Second Vice Chairman—John G. Coffey Jr.; Secretary—Mrs. R. Eugene Laurence; Assistant Secretary—Judge Francis J. Fazzano; Treasurer—Leslie K. Pomeroy Jr.; Assistant Treasurer—Jonathan K. Farnum.

Administrator — John J. Hynes.

LANDMARK MEDICAL CENTER

Fogarty Unit
Eddie Dowling Highway
North Smithfield, RI 02895
Woonsocket Unit
115 Cass Avenue
Woonsocket, RI 02895

Landmark Medical Center is a 315 bed, non-profit voluntary hospital serving the Northern Rhode Island, nearby Massachusetts and Connecticut communities. Created in August, 1988 through the consolidation of Fogarty Memorial and Woonsocket Hospitals, Landmark Medical Center has embarked on a 3-5 year development plan that includes establishing new services and enhancing and expanding others. It will also mean nearly $13 million in renovations and new equipment acquisition. Through two health centers (located approximately 3 miles apart), the Fogarty Unit in North Smithfield, and the Woonsocket Unit, Landmark Medical Center offers virtually every health care specialty.

The 250 bed Woonsocket Unit is a center for acute care services, and includes inpatient medical, surgical, intensive and coronary care, obstetrics and pediatrics, as well as a full range of outpatient services.

As a member of the Rhode Island Magnetic Resonance Imaging Network, Landmark Medical Center also offers the newest in diagnostic imaging technology.

The 65 bed Fogarty Unit is a center for rehabilitative services and features a 25 bed, comprehensive Physical Rehabilitation Unit. By summer, 1989, the hospital's mental health center will be relocated and expanded in totally renovated space at the Fogarty Unit and will include 22 general psychiatric beds, a 10-bed intensive psychiatric care unit and an 8-bed chemical detox unit. The Fogarty Unit also serves as the primary center for outpatient testing and treatment and the Medical Center's one-day surgery program.

Landmark Medical Center provides a comprehensive system of regional emergency care through two, full-service, 24-hour Emergency Departments, located at the Fogarty and Woonsocket Units. Combined, these two facilities treat more than 55,000 emergency patients and their families each year.

Drawing on a tradition of community hospital care which dates back more than a century, Landmark Medical Center looks toward the future as a trusted and respected provider of comprehensive health care services for our region.

Board of Trustees: President and Chairman — Robert D. Walker; Beatrice Carpenter; Joseph Dalti, Jr.; S. Ronald Daniels; Jacques Dubois; Nancy Hudson; Sen. Paul S. Kelly; Harold Kenoian; Edgar J. THE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

111 Brewster Street
Pawtucket, RI 02860

Memorial Hospital of Rhode Island is a 294 bed teaching hospital affiliated with the Brown University Program in Medicine. Memorial completed a $14.8 million expansion and renovation program in September 1987, capping off a project that has dramatically reshaped the hospital over the last two decades. Memorial provides acute medical treatment in medicine, family medicine, obstetrics/gynecology, pediatrics, surgery, anesthesiology, radiology and pathology.

Memorial's new rehabilitation center focuses on services to patients afflicted by stroke, amputation or neurological disability. Comprehensive inpatient and outpatient services include physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech/language pathology, as well as medical physiatric followup and a brace clinic.

Memorial's new emergency room features additional treatment areas, expanded trauma and resuscitation areas for 24 hour-a-day emergency care. To respond to the growing need for treatment on an outpatient basis, Memorial Hospital offers one day surgery. The hospital's Ambulatory Care Center features pre-admission testing and routine X-rays, in addition to consultations in a number of subspecialties. Evening and Saturday morning office hours are available, as well as daytime, for patients' convenience.

As a service to the Blackstone Valley community, special programs are provided in cardiac rehabilitation, diabetes outpatient education, coping with cancer, prepared child-birth and family planning. Memorial Hospital is the site of the Pawtucket Heart Health Program, a internationally recognized program promoting cardio-vascular health. The hospital's Parkinson's Disease Referral and Information Center, the only center in Rhode Island, sponsors educational programs for Parkinson's patients and their families and offers support groups at sites throughout the state.

Memorial is a principal and managing partner of the NewHealth Center.

Memorial's physicians are actively involved in medical research and annually receive over $4 million in federal research funds to investigate blood disorders, blood pressure, heart attacks, pulmonary functions and AIDS.

The second largest teaching hospital in the state, Memorial offers Brown University Residency programs in Internal Medicine and Family Practice. Fellowships are offered in cardiology, hematology/oncology, infectious diseases, pulmonary medicine and pathology. In addition to training nurse anesthetists and medical technologists, Memorial sponsors internships in physical therapy, pharmacy, social service, food service and ministry.

Memorial is one of the first hospitals in the state to offer one of the most advanced technologies, Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), as part of Rhode Island Magnetic Imaging Network.

Board of Trustees: Chairman—Edward W. Barlow; President—Francis R. Dietz; Vice Chairmen—E. Swift Lawrence and John J. McMahon; Treasurer—William F. THE MIRIAM HOSPITAL

164 Summit Ave.
Providence, RI 02906

The Miriam Hospital Association, organized by a group of women, obtained a charter in 1907, to establish a hospital in Providence. In 1923, community leaders joined in a campaign to raise funds to convert property on Parade Street into the first Miriam Hospital. The hospital was dedicated on Nov. 15, 1925.

At the end of World War II, a fund raising drive to provide funds for a new hospital was conducted. The drive was successful and the property of the former Jewish Orphanage on Summit Avenue was purchased. A supplemental fund campaign along with federal aid paved the way for construction of The Miriam Hospital on the Summit Avenue site. The new hospital with a 160 bed capacity was dedicated on Dec. 14, 1952.

Ten years later the hospital was operating at capacity and another expansion project was under way. The new Miriam Hospital was dedicated on April 24, 1966.

In 1969, The Miriam Hospital affiliated with the Brown University Program in Medicine and a research building was constructed on the hospital grounds. Since that time, a new Intensive Care Unit Building has been opened, as well as the fourth floor of the 1966 building.

Miriam Hospital is a non-sectarian, non-profit institution with 247 medical/surgical beds.

Chairman—Edwin A. Jaffe; Vice Chairman—Susan Leach DeBlasio; Treasurer—Alan M. Gilstein; Secretary—Deborah D. Benik.

President—Daniel A. Kane.

NEWPORT HOSPITAL

Friendship St.
Newport, RI 02840

Newport Hospital has been providing quality health care for the people of Aquidneck and Conanicut Islands on a continuing basis since 1873. The original two-story clapboard hospital, which contained twelve beds, was founded to provide medical services for mariners and the poor.

Today, Newport Hospital is a 217-bed private, not-for-profit, voluntary, general hospital dedicated to providing quality patient care and committed to promoting health education. The hospital is accredited by several voluntary accrediting agencies including the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals and is licensed by the Rhode Island Department of Health. The hospital's Vanderbilt Rehabilitation Center provides the only hospital based physical restoration program in Rhode Island which is accredited by the national Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities and which is exempt under the Medicare prospective payment system. The Newport Hospital School of Nursing, which opened in 1886, is the twentieth nursing school to be established in the United States. In addition, the hospital participates in cooperative programs with colleges and universities for the education of registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, x-ray technicians, physical therapists, pharmacists and other allied health personnel.

All patient rooms are located in modern buildings constructed between 1970 and 1980 with the exception of the thirty-two rehabilitation beds in the recently renovated Vanderbilt Building. The Sheffield Building, completed in September, 1980, houses state of the art Intensive and Coronary Care Units as well as a new and completely equipped Emergency Department and Education Center. In the past decade the hospital has increased its capabilities to include: a Mental Health Unit, Nuclear Medicine Department, ultrasound and echocardiography capabilities, Ambulatory Surgery Program, a Coronary Care Unit with computerized cardiac monitoring, a comprehensive physical rehabilitation program, an Emergency Department staffed with full-time, board certified physicians, Family Practice Centers, a Cardio-Pulmonary Division, CT scanning capabilities, mammography and a maternity program.

RHODE ISLAND HOSPITAL
593 Eddy St.
Providence, RI 02903

Rhode Island Hospital is a voluntary, not-for-profit hospital founded in Rhode Island in 1863 and opened in 1868 as the state's first general hospital. It was built, equipped and endowed by contributions from private citizens. It presently serves as a 719-bed major affiliated hospital of the Brown University Program in Medicine, and is the state-designated regional trauma center and poison center. More than 800 physicians represent knowledge and expertise in nearly every medical and surgical specialty. Staff treat sick and injured children and adults referred by physicians and other hospitals in the region. The hospital admits nearly 26,000 patients annually and 150,000 visits are made each year to its Emergency Department and Outpatient Clinics.

The hospital campus encompasses 26 buildings on 54 acres. Most patient care areas are located in the Main Building, Jane Brown Building, the Potter Building for Children, the Ambulatory Patient Center and the Davol Building for Emergency and Surgical Services.

In addition to the medical school, the hospital is affiliated with Women & Infants Hospital of R.I. which is located on the RIH campus, with the Bradley Psychiatric Hospital for Children, and with the Cranston General Hospital/Osteopathic with which it has developed a rehabilitation service.

Accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations, Rhode Island Hospital is a member of the Council of Teaching Hospitals of the Association of American Medical Colleges and the Voluntary Colleges of America.

ROGER WILLIAMS GENERAL HOSPITAL

825 Chalkstone Ave.
Providence, RI 02908

Roger Williams General Hospital has been a vital part of the Rhode Island community for more than 100 years and is recognized nationally for innovative programs in health care, education and research. A major affiliate of the Brown University Program in Medicine, the hospital combines a sophisticated teaching and research hospital with the warmth and individualized care of a community hospital.

The hospital offers 238 acute care beds, a regional referral center for a variety of specialty health services, a modern metropolitan Emergency Department, and one of the largest free health education programs in the state.

The hospital is the only National Cancer Institute-designated Clinical Cancer Research Center in Rhode Island, and is one of 75 General Clinical Research Centers in the country designated by the National Institutes of Health.

The hospital also operates medical office satellites in Greenville and North Providence. As a Center for Geriatrics, the hospital also has relationships with several area nursing homes and the Southeastern New England Long Term Care Gerontology Program.

The hospital was established as a private, proprietary hospital in 1878 and incorporated as Homeopathic Hospital of Rhode Island in 1904. The hospital's name was changed to Roger Williams General Hospital on Feb. 20, 1947.

SOUTH COUNTY HOSPITAL

100 Kenyon Ave.
Wakefield, RI 02879

The South County Hospital was organized in 1919 and incorporated on April 1, 1920 as the South County Cottage Hospital for the purpose "of operating and maintaining a hospital for the sick, disabled and injured of Washington County." After four years in a temporary cottage, the present original building was erected with a capacity of 46 beds and 11 bassinets. The T. G. Hazard Jr. Memorial wing was opened on Aug. 16, 1952, adding additional beds and bassinets, as well as an enlarged x-ray, laboratory and other ancillary facilities. On Oct. 28, 1962, another addition was completed at the hospital providing expanded facilities for operating room, clinical laboratories, central supply, recovery room and a complete new heating plant. The bed capacity was increased to 72 beds and 6 bassinets. In 1970, the Borda Wing opened, bringing the total number of beds to 100.

The expansion program of outpatient facilities which began in 1978 was completed in 1980. The addition consisted of an enlarged emergency room, new outpatient services for clinical laboratories, x-ray department, respiratory therapy and nuclear medicine and ultra sound.

A $5 million south wing addition to the hospital was completed and opened for occupancy Sep. 13, 1981. This building, known as the Read Wing, replaced 57 beds in the original building of the hospital. The original building was renamed the Sturges Building. The addition includes an expanded coronary intensive care unit, new maternity department, new pharmacy and an expanded central sterile supply. A new surgical pavilion for outpatient and inpatient surgery was dedicated on June 6, 1988.

The hospital provides services to both inpatients and outpatients for general, medical, surgical, obstetrical and pediatrics. There is also a 24-hour emergency department, nuclear medicine, ultrasound services, and CT Scanning.

WOMEN & INFANTS HOSPITAL OF RHODE ISLAND

101 Dudley Street
Providence, RI 02905

Founded in 1884 as Providence Lying-In Hospital, the hospital provides a continuum of health care services to Southeastern New England women and infants in the areas of obstetrics, gynecology, neonatology and general women's health.

In addition to the more than 9,000 deliveries performed at the hospital each year, Women & Infants Hospital is the regional tertiary perinatal center for care of high risk pregnant women and newborn infants. Each year over 1,000 distressed infants are treated in the Special Care Nursery, some born at Women & Infants, others brought to Women & Infants by emergency transport from other obstetric services. The hospital provides programs for women past their childbearing years, and its gynecologic service records more than 7,000 procedures a year.

The ambulatory center provides a comprehensive prenatal and postnatal care program as well as family planning, social service and nutritional counseling programs. The hospital, which relocated to an entirely new facility adjacent to Rhode Island Hospital in 1986, has a capacity of 137 adult beds and 120 infant care bassinets, including 41 newborn intensive care bassinets.

DR. U.E. ZAMBARANO MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Wallum Lake Road
Pascoag, RI 02859

Zambarano Hospital is a 262 bed long-term care hospital operated by the Rhode Island Department of Mental Health, Retardation and Hospitals. It was awarded a three-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals effective June, 1987. Admission is obtained through the Admissions Review Committee upon recommendation of any physician licensed to practice in Rhode Island. James P. Benedict is the Hospital Chief Administrative Officer.

The State Sanatorium of Wallum Lake, on 450 acres in Burrillville, was opened for treatment of patients on Nov. 1, 1905. It was constructed by the state in accordance with a resolution passed in 1902. The name was changed to Dr. U.E. Zambarano Memorial Hospital on March 14, 1955. James P. Benedict is Hospital Chief Administrative Officer.

The institution was originally built for 100 patients, but the additional porches raised the number to 190. The addition of two children's wards and an advanced care ward between 1914 and 1927 increased the total capacity to 437 beds. Under PWA program of 1934-35 the following buildings were constructed: the Danford House addition, with a capacity of 60 beds, opened for occupancy February, 1937; Nurses' Home (Fitzpatrick House), with facilities to accommodate 68 nurses, opened for occupancy February, 1935; three cottages for staff physicians, opened for occupancy May, 1937. Under the same project a new power plant was constructed.

In January, 1938, the Hospital and Administration Building (Wallum Lake House), constructed under PWA, opened with a capacity of 336 beds.

The original hospital buildings of frame construction were demolished in 1940. Patients are now all housed in fireproof brick buildings.

The Children's Building, named the Hamblet, was opened in 1940 and was intended to be used for housing adolescents with adult-type tuberculosis.

In July, 1958, the hospital started admitting patients with non-tuberculosis diseases.

The hospital's Capital Development Program, completed in the fall of 1980, consolidated all long-term care patients and services into one building, the Wallum Lake Building. This has resulted in the hospital now having a licensed bed capacity of 262.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1988 the hospital provided 89,015 days of care by patients. Admissions to the hospital numbered 97.

Physical and therapeutic treatments in the various rehabilitative programs numbered 73,033.

The hospital also has facilities for the following: x-ray, laminagraphy, clinical laboratory, dental department, physiotherapy, social service, pharmacy, therapeutic recreation, education and the usual hospital service. An Alzheimer's Unit and a developmental disabilities unit are among the hospital's special programs.

BLUE CROSS & BLUE SHIELD OF RHODE ISLAND

444 Westminster Mall
Providence, RI 02901

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island is a voluntary, non-profit corporation, established for the pre-payment of hospital and medical-surgical expenses.

Membership in the plan as of November 30, 1988 was approximately 670,000 persons who reside or work in Rhode Island. Enrollment is obtained through groups at a person's place of employment or through Direct Pay enrollment for persons not eligible for group coverage. No one is ever denied membership because of poor health.

Benefits are guaranteed by the following member hospitals: Bradley, Butler, Cranston General, Fuller Memorial, Institute of Mental Health, Kent County, Landmark Medical Center, Memorial, Miriam, Newport, Notre Dame, Rhode Island, Roger Williams, St. Joseph, South County, Westerly, Women and Infants, and Zambarano. Service benefit hospitals are: St. Anne's and Charlton Memorial, Fall River, Mass.; and Sturdy Memorial Hospital, Attleboro, Mass.

In addition, participating physicians—representing more than 83 percent of the physicians in the state—have agreed to accept Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plan 100 allowances as payment in full for eligible services.

Hospital benefits vary slightly, but 99 percent of all subscribers have full coverage for room and board, nursing and intensive care services; up to 120 days of hospitalization for each admission; full coverage in member and service benefit hospitals for use of operating rooms, all necessary laboratory tests, all medical and surgical supplies, physical therapy, oxygen therapy, all drugs and medications listed in the Pharmacopeia of the United States, all pathological examinations, and intravenous solutions equipment.

Medical-surgical benefits cover payments for surgery, reduction of fractures or dislocations, services of the assisting surgeon and physician anesthetist. Also provided are benefits for maternity cases, visits to non-surgical patients in the hospital and x-rays.

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island has a Federal contract to process claims for the Uniformed Services Treatment Facility program. These involve former public health service hospitals which now treat both military personnel and civilians. In addition, it administers the Medicare program for Rhode Islanders over age 65.

During 1987, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Rhode Island paid hospital and medical surgical bills of more than $393 million on more than 5.3 million local claims. It also processed more than 4.9 million claims for government and other business totalling more than $811 million.

Prior to a merger that was effective Oct. 1, 1982, Blue Cross of Rhode Island and Blue Shield of Rhode Island were separate corporations. Blue Cross of Rhode Island was established in 1939. Blue Shield of Rhode Island was established in 1949 under the corporate title of Rhode Island Medical Society Physicians Service.

HMO RHODE ISLAND INC.

30 Chestnut Street
Providence, RI 02901

HMO Rhode Island is a wholly-owned, for profit subsidiary of Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island. It is based on the primary care concept.

HMO Rhode Island members go to a Primary Care Physician for coordination of all of their medical needs. This doctor is usually a family practitioner, internist or pediatrician. He or she provides members with basic care such as office visits, routine check-ups, well baby care and vision and hearing screening. The Primary Care Physiscian also coordinates all of the member's health care needs. If the member needs a specialist, the Primary Care Physician helps the patient select the specialist and monitors all treatment that is given.

Along with routine and specialty care, HMO Rhode Island also provides for laboratory services, x-rays, physical and speech therapy, radiological services, home health care, alcohol and chemical dependency, mental health care, podiatric care, oral surgery, prosthetic devices, skilled nursing facilities and hospice care.

HMO Rhode Island has a standard and a high option benefit plan. Both offer the same coverage, although there are more co-payments with the standard option. Riders are also available for prescription drug, transplant and vision care coverage.

HMO Rhode Island received its operating license from the Rhode Island Department of Business Regulation on August 12, 1986. As of December 1, 1988, more than 6,000 members have signed up for the health plan.

Key Staff: President — Michael C. Gerhardt; Director of Health Services Administration — Clyde Logan; Director of Marketing — Thomas Uustaal.

JOURNAL-BULLETIN SANTA CLAUS FUND

Sponsored by the Providence Journal and Evening Bulletin, the Journal-Bulletin Santa Claus Fund was initiated in 1924, beginning as part of the city of Providence celebration of Christmas. As years passed, other communities were added, until now the area served covers the entire state.

The purpose of the Journal-Bulletin Santa Claus Fund is to provide Christmas gifts for thousands of boys and girls who otherwise would have nothing on that holiday. About 40 public and private welfare agencies cooperate with Santa in preparing the list of children to receive gifts.

The Journal-Bulletin Santa Claus Fund is financed entirely by voluntary contributions from individuals and organizations in every part of Rhode Island. The money thus raised is used for the purchase of Christmas gifts for deserving children.

In 1924, the first year, toys were sent to 6,668 boys and girls. In 1933, in the depths of the depression, the number rose to 16,634.

Detailed statistics on the 1988 Santa Claus Fund were: contributions, $88,817.47; toys distributed, 17,400.

JOURNAL-BULLETIN SUMMERTIME FUND

The Summertime Fund, started in 1967, provides funds to send deserving children to camp each summer. Sponsored by the Journal-Bulletin, the fund is financed solely through contributions from individuals and organizations.

From 1967 to 1972, the fund sent Providence children on day trips to museums, parks, etc. In 1973 the format was changed to include children throughout the entire state and the Summertime Fund provided scholarships for a two-week period at day camps located in various parts of the state.

Statistics on the 1988 Summertime Fund: 949 children were sent to camp; contributions totaled $87,584.50.

FIRST NEWSPAPERS

First newspaper published in Rhode Island, Sept. 27, 1732, was the Rhode Island Gazette. First edition of the Newport Mercury was published in Boston, Sept. 25, 1690, but was suppressed by the authorities after the first edition as it was unlicensed. The first daily newspaper in the United States was the Pennsylvania Packet and General Advertiser, published Sept. 21, 1748 in Philadelphia.

MARKET HOUSE

In 1771, the General Assembly gave permission for a lottery to provide funds for erection of a Market House, completed in 1774, which remains the central feature of the square. Restoration to its appearance of a century ago was undertaken in 1938-1939. It is now part of R.I. School of Design.

The lower story was used as a market. The second floor served, at various times, as a banquet hall, barracks for French soldiers, and an office of Samuel Bridgham, first mayor of the city.

The third story was added in 1797 by St. John's Lodge for Masonic quarters, and here, in 1802, was organized St. John's Encampment (now Commandery) Number One, the oldest Knights Templar organization in America.

STATE MEDICAL CENTER

The R.I. Department of Mental Health, Retardation and Hospitals' administrative offices are located at the Medical Center in Cranston. The department was established within the executive branch of the state government in 1970 (General Laws, Chapter 42-12). Two of the four major institutions operated by MHRH, the Institute of Mental Health and the General Hospital, are located at the Medical Center in Cranston. MHRH also operates the [illegible] Center in Exeter and the Zambarano Memorial Hospital in Burrillville.

The Institute of Mental Health is a 272 bed psychiatric hospital providing long term psychiatric care, acute care services and competency evaluations for District and Superior Courts. Service programs of the hospital include admission, rehabilitation, special treatment and forensics.

The General Hospital is a 505 bed facility specializing in long term care with supportive acute, psycho-geriatric, oncological, respiratory and rehabilitative services. Multi-disciplinary rehabilitative programming emphasizes individual functional ability.

Also located at the Medical Center and operated by MHRH is the Benjamin Rush detoxification Unit, a 48 bed facility providing 24 hour comprehensive drug and alcohol detoxification services.

HURRICANES IN RHODE ISLAND

Sept. 21, 1938

(All Times Are Eastern Standard)

A hurricane and tidal wave swept over the state, taking a death toll of 262 persons, causing damage estimated at $100,000,000 and completely prostrating the commonwealth in the worst disaster in its history.

The South Shore, from Watch Hill to Narragansett, bore the brunt of the devastation. Westerly, with 59 deaths, and Charlestown, with 50, suffered 109 of the state's 262 deaths. Two tidal waves of almost 30 feet high destroyed or damaged most of the beach homes in this area. Beginning at 3:30 p.m. the devastation in this area was completed in 20 minutes, sweeping scores of persons, and in some cases whole families, to their deaths.

In downtown Providence the tidal wave flooded the area to a depth of more than 13.9 feet above mean high water mark. Persons were drowned trying to escape, automobiles were submerged in the streets, department stores, banks, hotels, restaurants and shops were flooded to the first floor ceilings.

At 4:16 p.m., all power and telephone lines died. The only means of communication by state and municipal authorities was radio short wave. Martial law was established in many sections and curfew rules put in effect. With its press room flooded and deprived of power, the Providence Journal and Evening Bulletin were unable to print on their own presses. Emergency editions were printed without interruption, the Providence Journal on the presses of the Woonsocket Call and the Evening Bulletin on the presses of the Boston Post. The Journal and Bulletin resumed publication on its own presses October 3.

Official observations at the United States Weather Bureau in Providence show the peak of the high tide occurred at 6 p.m., and the lowest barometer reading was 28.90. The highest wind velocity, 95 miles an hour at 4:07 p.m., wrecked the wind measuring equipment. The highest velocity for a five-minute period was 87 miles per hour at 4:05 p.m. The Block Island Weather Bureau's highest wind velocity was 82 m.p.h., southeast, and the lowest barometer was 28.66.

The United States Engineers' Office in Providence made a survey to determine the elevation of the flood tide at certain locations: Rhode Island Hospital Trust Building, outside the door on Exchange Place, 13.21 feet above mean high water. At the easterly corner of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Building the elevation was 11.72 feet above mean high water level as compared with 11.68 feet in the Great Gale of 1815.

At the Chamber of Commerce Building (Old Market House), the high water mark was 11.73 feet above mean high water. At the Post Office Building the water rose to 13.26 feet above mean high water. According to figures obtained by the Providence City Engineers' Office, the water reached a mark of 13.04 feet above mean high water at the Biltmore Hotel on Washington Street.

The Red Cross spent $433,485 in Rhode Island for the rehabilitation of 3,074 families. A total of 19,695 families suffered property loss, 797 permanent homes were destroyed, 1,169 summer homes were washed away, 899 boats destroyed and 888 damaged, 177 barns and 1,800 other buildings of various types destroyed, 144 cattle, 41 work animals and 18,475 chickens and turkeys killed.

The seashore hotel loss was fixed at $1,000,000; farm loss, $6,000,000; fishing industry, $960,000; Newport Naval Station, $650,000; Newport County crops and buildings, $300,000.

Sept. 14, 1944

The second hurricane in six years hit the South Shore at 6 p.m., causing property damage estimated at $2,000,000 in Rhode Island. There was no loss of life.

The coastal area bore the brunt of the hurricane, inflicting heavy damage from Westerly to Little Compton, including Newport. The northern and central part of the state escaped the fury of the storm. Telephone and telegraph, electric light and power service was completely disrupted. Transportation was paralyzed and railroad service west of Providence suspended.

Many homes along the South County shore from Watch Hill to Wickford were blown from their foundations. Misquamicut and Quonochontaug being particularly hard hit. Warwick shore property was also damaged. Damage estimated at $500,000 was caused in Newport, Bailey's Beach, Hazard's Beach. At Sakonnet Point, Little Compton, widespread damage resulted from wind and tides, several houses being destroyed. Along the east shore many homes were flooded and Bristol County was without water, due to the flooding of the reservoir.

There was no tidal wave because the storm hit the state at ebb tide. The water was about eight feet below that of the 1938 hurricane.

In Providence the water rose to within six inches of the Crawford Street Bridge. In the city's center, water flowed over the curbs as a result of the heavy rainfall of 5.43 inches and the high tides which blocked the normal drainage flow. On Exchange Place Mall, the water was knee deep. Because the water approached the flood danger point, the Narragansett Electric Co. shut off all power from 11:07 p.m. to 1:02 a.m., September 15, to avoid the danger of fire from short circuits.

The Block Island Weather Bureau's low barometer of 28.34 was .32 below that of the 1938 hurricane. The wind velocity of 82 m.p.h equalled that of 1938, with gusts up to 100 m.p.h. from the southeast. Rainfall measured 1.55 inches.

The Providence Weather Bureau barometer dipped to 28.56, or .34 below the 1938 record. During a 16-hour period, the drop was 1.40 inches. The highest sustained wind velocity was 43 m.p.h., with gusts up to 90 m.p.h. The State Airport barometer registered 28.48, lower than Providence, because it was nearer the center of the storm.

Aug. 31, 1954

Preceded by only a few minutes warning, Hurricane Carol swept across the state leaving 19 dead and scores of injured. Property damage was estimated at $90,000,000.

As in 1938, the hurricane, which reached its peak intensity at 11:37 a.m., hit at high tide and was accompanied by tidal waves.

Damage all along the Rhode Island shoreline was almost unbelievable. Many summer colonies, like those at Misquamicut and Weekapaug, were almost completely obliterated; 2,000 fishing boats and pleasure craft were sunk or damaged.

Throughout the state trees were felled, buildings were damaged and washouts were common. Almost 3,800 homes were destroyed and thousands more bore scars. Electric power failed at 9:10 a.m. and was unavailable in most sections for days, 95 percent of telephones were dead.

The downtown area of Providence was flooded when the water reached 13 feet above mean high water level, just .9 of a foot below the 1938 record. Millions of dollars in merchandise was lost. Almost 3,500 automobiles, valued at $5,000,000 were inundated. The city was crippled for a week during the pumping out process, and while utilities were being restored.

The Providence Journal presses were flooded, but editions of the Journal and Evening Bulletin were printed on the presses of the Woonsocket Call and Pawtucket Times. The Journal resumed publication with limited facilities on its own presses on September 3.

Hillsgrove weather station reported sustained winds at 90 m.p.h. just before 12 noon and gusts of 110-115 m.p.h. Lowest barometer readings between 11:30 and 12:30 were 28.69 inches as the eye of the storm passed near the state airport.

Throughout the state farm damage was high, running in total to an estimated $2,000,000. Buildings accounted for much of this figure, but orchards and nurseries were also hard hit.

The state's commercial fishing fleet and its facilities were all but put out of business. Boats were sunk or damaged, docks were torn apart and shore plants were flooded. Losses ran close to $1,000,000.

Damage to yacht clubs, marinas and pleasure craft was in the millions with the stretch of shoreline from Fields Point to Pawtuxet Neck the hardest hit. Of 150 craft moored in this area, 75 were sunk, 26 were damaged and only a few were left at their moorings. The Rhode Island Yacht Club and its dock facilities were completely destroyed. Damage was over $1,000,000. The Atlantic Tuna Derby Fleet gathered at Galilee had 24 boats sunk and three badly damaged. The remainder all sustained some minor damage.

Sept. 11, 1954

The state's second hurricane in just 12 days, Hurricane Edna, spared Rhode Island the devastation of its worst winds and seas but power and communications were cut; hitting the state several hours after full moon tide with torrential rains and winds from 40 to 50 miles an hour, with blasts of more than 90 m.p.h at Block Island. Blackstone River overflowed its banks, swamping homes, industrial plants and streets along Blackstone Valley; damage estimated in the hundreds of thousands.

Aug. 19, 1955

Hurricane Diane, her winds abated by an inland trip, brought 6.13 inches of rain to Rhode Island, causing the worst flood in the state's history. Most serious damage was in the Blackstone Valley with the Social District of Woonsocket hardest hit. Homes and factories along the river were severely damaged.

Ample warning and quick action by the authorities resulted in only two lives being lost. People were evacuated from the low-lying areas as local, state and civilian agencies went into action before the swollen rivers began their destruction.

Rail travel between Providence and Boston was suspended. Power and phone failures were common. Loss was estimated at $170,000,000.

Woonsocket was cut in half as all of the dams on the Blackstone and Mill Rivers were breached. Tide crest reached 15 feet above normal with eight feet covering the Social District. Stores, homes and offices were left under tons of mud. Damage was estimated at $25,000,000.

Sept. 12, 1960

Hurricane Donna, with sustained winds of up to 58 miles per hour, and gusts up to 81 miles per hour, swept across Rhode Island on this date. No deaths were recorded and there was no tidal wave.

The barometer at Hillsgrove dropped to 28.66. Rainfall totaled 2.22 inches from 2 a.m. to 6 p.m. The tidal surge in the Providence River ranged between 6 and 6.5 feet above normal high tide. Property damage was estimated at $2,140,000.

Ample warning permitted schools, stores, manufacturing establishments and government offices to close before the storm hit. It also permitted extensive precautions. This accounts to some extent for the lack of deaths and relatively low property damage.

Phone service and travel were interrupted, but Narragansett Electric Co. was hardest hit. Of 163 feeder lines, 153 were knocked out by Donna, leaving 170,000, or 82 percent, of its customers without service. With some exceptions service was restored by the 17th.

Sept. 27, 1985

Hurricane Gloria, billed as one of the most powerful hurricanes of the century, sideswiped Rhode Island on September 27, 1985, blacking out much of the state and causing widespread damage.

Packing winds gusting up to 81 miles per hour (with a 91-mph gust reported in Westerly), Gloria's eye passed to the west of the state, traveling at a speed of about 40 mph.

One person died during the storm, killed by a tree that fell when he tried to remove a branch from a telephone wire leading to his home. Another man was apparently killed after being hit in the face by the boom of his 30-foot sailboat in Bristol Harbor, but that death came after the storm moved out of the region through western Massachusetts.

About 350,000 customers lost electrical service and 7,300 persons were forced to evacuate. About 2,000 telephone customers lost service.

By mid-morning, Gov. Edward DiPrete had banned all travel, closed the state's major bridges, ordered schools and banks closed, sent non-essential state workers home and asked private businesses to shut down.

It took up to nine days for five power companies, using repair crews from as far away as Quebec and North Carolina, to restore power. By 6 p.m. Tuesday, four days after the Friday afternoon storm, 27,000 Rhode Island homes or businesses were still without electricity.

Part of the restoration efforts were aggravated by the fact that the storm brought virutually no rain to the state. There was, however, a salt spray that coated transmission lines with salt. When it rained a few days later, the salt caused some power lines to short circuit.
